Rain Prevents Final World Series Contest

Commissioner Landis Called Off Today's Game at Pittsburgh at 2:30—Postponement Is Welcomed by Both Clubs Giving Both Johnson and Aldridge Further Rest—Break for Pirates.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)
By Telegram to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—Rain today prevented the final clash of the world series. Commissioner Landis called off the game at 2:30 after having waited half an hour to see if the rain would stop.

Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—As skittish a moment as ever confronted mortal flesh arrived this afternoon with the seventh and final game of the world series, and Blonnie crossing Niagara Falls on a tight rope could afford a misstep no less than could the Pirates and Senators. Tied at three all the team that didn't hit the bull's eye was the team to take second money and a punch on the chin.

More than 45,000 fans, the record crowd of the series, was here to say that the Washington Senators having cracked behind a 3 to 1 lead, was due for the block and fall. Translated, this meant that the Senators were to block one with their chin and take a fall. Plenty of money at odds at six to five were taken on this theory.

However, two hours before the game, there was more than a bare possibility that nothing would transpire. Nothing, that is, except one little rain drop.

Johnson Likes Dark Days.
The forecast was for rain later in the day but noon found the situation dark that it looked as though the elements meant to score a news beat on the forecaster.

However, if the weather remained as is, Washington hardly figured to be altogether displeased since it was the general thought that Walter Johnson was due to pitch his third game and mayhap, his third victory of the series.

Walter likes a dark back ground for his fast one and today's was no darker than ink on a black board.

However, a postponement would prove a boon of great magnitude to both clubs, but a trifle more so to Pittsburgh. It will be third appearance of Vic Aldridge in the series and the Senators have seen all too much of him already.

Red Oldham Mentioned.
As it was, Red Oldham, an obscure and none too callow left hander, was prominently mentioned shortly before game time as Bill McKechnie's nominee. Oldham won three games and lost two this season and appeared in only two complete games.

It didn't seem logical to drop a sizzling pitcher in the slot and expect to see a million dollar ball game shoot out but never-the-less this was said to have been McKechnie's plan no later than 11:15 this morning.

Would Welcome Postponement.
A postponement would have meant a further rest for Johnson's trick leg but altogether it meant more to the Pirates to carry the situation through another 24 hours.

It began to look a trifle lighter shortly after the noon hour, however, there being the merest hint that a sun still existed out where the blue begins.

Standing Tickets at $3.30.
The great fight of the Pirates in snatching their way back from a discredited second runner to an absolute stand off with no questions asked, brought the entire town up standing. Quite a lot of the boys remained in that position for the afternoon, but through no choice of theirs. Standing room tickets at $3.30 per line and physical foot were sold for the first time during the series.

Speculators piled their nefarious traffic in hotel lobbies, on street corners and where they might in a sort of catch-as-can system of operations. The young men were in excellent voice but the crowd started away from them in droves, waiting for a movement in the market. It came around noon when the boys started to shave prices considerably.

Morrison in Relief Role.
The Pirates burst up on the scene shortly afterward, and almost simultaneously, came a report that McKechnie planned to start Oldham only so that he might replace immediately with Johnny Morrison. The latter, it seemed, felt that he could come on in the guise of a relief pitcher.

Evidence that McKechnie intended starting Oldham was given when the Pirates took their batting practice. Oldham took his regular turn at the bat in the pitcher's position. Manager Harris at 1 o'clock left to doubt as to his pitching choice.

Harris Says "It's Walter."
"It's Walter," he declared, "and he will be the right one."

One Washington player revealed the fact that Oldham had defeated the Senators eight times in 1922.

definite choice of Oldham as his pitcher.

Aldridge Won't Start.
"Oldham's a possibility to start the game," he said. "So is Morrison. It will be one or the other."

Asked whether this meant the elimination of Aldridge, the Pirate manager replied:

"Not by a jugful. It only means that Aldridge will not start the game."

Pirate Pitcher Undecided.
At 1:30 McKechnie said he believed he would pitch Morrison, in fact just about made up his mind to it. "It all depends on how he warms up, however," the Pirate leader said. "He is my choice now, but I might switch before the game starts."

Break Financial Records.
With nearly a million dollars in the box office already and a record crowd present, all financial records were present to go by nightfall. The present record, $1,093,143, was made during the Giant-Yankee series in 1923. They played to larger crowds, but the tariff was lower at that time.

A few drops of rain began to fall at 1:25. The air at that time was still muggy and the weather threatening. The Senators were at batting practice and continued without paying any attention to the slight rainfall.

The Pirates took the field for fielding practice at 1:31, about ten minutes before their customary time, indicating it might be planned to start the game before the scheduled hour of 2 p. m.

Raining at 1:35.
It began to rain harder at 1:35. Field hands deployed into the outfield with tarpaulins and fans in the unprotected stands tried to hide under newspapers.

The Washington players took the field for practice at 1:44 p. m. with a light drizzle still falling. At that time the right outfield had been entirely covered with tarpaulins.

Game Will Start.
Judge Landis then announced that the game would start regardless of conditions. As to whether it would continue he said, that it would be at the discretion of the umpires.

Johnson and Ruel.
Washington's line-up was officially announced at 1:48 p. m., with Johnson pitching and Ruel catching, but at that time neither Washington nor Pittsburgh pitchers were warming up.

Attendants began taking the covering off the outfield at 1:50 p. m. Johnson and Ruel were officially announced as the Washington battery.

The workmen brought the tarpaulin in from the outfield and covered the infield with it.

Landis Undetermined.
At 1:45 the infield had been entirely covered and both clubs were in their dugouts. It was impossible to get anything from Judge Landis. He was undetermined as to what would be done. A light drizzle was still falling. Billy Evans, American League umpire, was a visitor in the press box at this stage. He told of talking with Walter Johnson and said that Johnson was rarin' to go. "It's a dark day, you know," said Evans, "and Johnson will go big."

Undecided at 2:10.
At 2:02 Commissioner Landis told newspapermen he would wait awhile and see if the weather moderated. A steady drizzle was falling and the fans were voicing their approval for some action.

At 2:10 with the drizzle still falling, Commissioner Landis said he would wait for a while before definitely determining whether the game would start or not.

Judge Landis remained in his field box with the rain steadily falling.

Altrock and Schacht Entertain.
The umpires walked over. At 2:25 p. m. Landis again announced that he would wait at least ten minutes before giving a decision. While the rain was still falling, the weather seemed to be clearing slightly. Nick Altrock and Al Schacht cheered the crowd by cleaning boots and "wading" around the diamond. They also put on their famous bat act which drew a big laugh from the crowd.

State Will Challenge James.

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 14.—With but four jurors tentatively accepted here today in the trial of D. C. Sycamore and his two alleged confederates, Earl Kluch and Earl Gentry for the murder of Madge Oberholzer of Indianapolis last March, the state made it known that two of the four would be challenged before final acceptance.

First Meeting of Senate.
The first meeting of the New's Club of the First Reformed Church for the season of 1925-1926 will be held in the chapel on Friday evening, Oct. 16, at 8 o'clock. The program will be as follows: Devotional, prayer, offering, singing, and a social hour enjoyed.

Lopez Orchestra For Victory Ball

Famous New York Artists Procured by Kingston Post, American Legion, for Victory Ball at Armory on Armistice Night, November 11.

Kingston Post, American Legion, has just signed contracts that will bring to Kingston for the Victory Ball at the armory on Armistice Night, November 11, one of the most famous dance orchestras in the world—the Vincent Lopez Club Orchestra.

Vincent Lopez needs no introduction to listeners in on the radio and to lovers of syncopated dance music. His fame as a director of orchestras is world-wide.

The Vincent Lopez Club Orchestra consists of 11 musicians. It enjoys fame of the highest order for its dance music in the exclusive clubs and private dances of New York. It will no doubt be the most famous orchestra that has ever played for dancing in Kingston.

Tickets for the Victory Ball will be ready for sale in a few days at a most reasonable price considering the quality of the attractions at the ball.

The American Legion intends to make the Victory Ball each year a real important social event of the winter season. With so distinguished and famous an orchestra as the Vincent Lopez Club Orchestra, this year's Victory Ball is an assured success. No dance lover in Ulster county will be absent from the armory on the night of November 11, and arrangements are being made to entertain and delight the largest assemblage ever in the local drill shed.

Bogart Named on Both Tickets

Kingstonian Heads Insurgent Ticket at State Automobile Association Meeting and Is Named for First Vice-President by Opposing Faction—Both Factions Elect Officers.

Two sets of officers were elected by opposing factions at the twenty-second annual convention of the New York State Automobile Association at Lockport on Tuesday. A mutual insurance, favored by the faction led by the retiring president, Oscar J. Brown of Syracuse, was the cause of the trouble that resulted in the election of two sets of officers.

Elva H. Bogart of this city headed the insurgent group which promptly elected him president. The Brown faction recognized Mr. Bogart by electing him first vice-president.

An attempt to patch up the differences between the two factions was made after each had elected a complete set of officers when each faction, although claiming to be the state association, named a representative to meet later this week and attempt a compromise. The association faction, headed by President Oscar J. Brown of Syracuse, named M. T. Bender of Albany, while the seceding wing, led by Elva H. Bogart, selected Stewart R. Hancock of Syracuse as its attorney.

In the event the lawyers are unable to reach an agreement, the question as to which constitutes the real state association will be taken to the supreme court. The court also will decide which faction is entitled to $8,000 in the treasury. The split occurred Monday when Brown ruled that only directors and delegates of the association were entitled to vote.

The insurgent wing held that every member in good standing in the association was entitled to vote. At their convention Tuesday a resolution was adopted opposing the association's participation in any form of commercial organization.

The insurgent ticket elected was: President, E. H. Bogart, Kingston; first vice-president, W. J. Wappeler, Buffalo; second vice-president, J. H. Hamilton, Gloversville; third vice-president, Leo Coupe, Utica; treasurer, W. E. Robbins, Medina.

The Brown ticket elected was: President, Oscar J. Brown, Syracuse; first vice-president, E. H. Bogart, Kingston; second vice-president, F. W. Sessions, Utica; third vice-president, M. L. Homann, New York; treasurer, P. C. Parsons, Cortland.

CHAMBERLAIN HURLS THREAT TO GERMAN DELEGATION.
By Telegram to The Freeman.

Locarno, Switzerland, Oct. 14.—No nation can afford to take the responsibility for weakening the security pact conference here—this statement was made today by Andrew Chamberlain, British foreign minister, and was interpreted as being a direct threat to the German delegation and the German nation.

Chamberlain's statement was particularly significant in view of the fact that German delegation there yesterday had presented a number of "incidental" demands as conditions to its entrance into the security pact. These demands include evacuation of the Rhineland and control of the Saar Valley and the mandate for some of Germany's former colonies.

Said Husband Gave Her Poison Tablets to Eat

Mrs. Oscar George Bayer of South Roadout Seeking Separation From Husband, Tells Startling Tale, Which Judge Morschauser Intimates Is Imaginary.

A startling tale of how her husband, Oscar George Bayer, had given her doses of dissolved tablets of corrosive sublimate for weeks that had caused her to become ill, was told Justice Morschauser in Poughkeepsie on Saturday by Mrs. Mary Shurtztritz Bayer, in an action for separation. The dissolved tablets were alleged to have been given to her two or three times a week, she saying her husband told her they were good for the blood.

The young persons were married in Poughkeepsie last Thanksgiving day and went to live in South Roadout, where he is employed as a cabinet maker. She told the court that although he had treated her kindly, never having abused or threatened her in any other way, he had told her he was going to poison her and had also told the same thing to Mrs. Backer, who resided in the same house.

To substantiate her statement that corrosive sublimate was used by her husband, she produced a bottle containing about three dozen of one and three-quarter grain tablets. This bottle, she said, she took from her husband's trunk when she left him July 11, going to Poughkeepsie and taking up her home with her parents.

One of these tablets, it was stated in court, would have been sufficient to have killed two horses, but she explained that they were only making her ill because Bayer had mixed up a large bottle full of the liquid and gave it to her in small doses.

Bought at Her Request.
Bayer admitted on the stand that they had the tablets in the house and that he had purchased them at her request. He denied that he had ever given them to her or had the least intention of poisoning his wife, but on the contrary he loved her and had just completed a home for her where he would be only too glad to have her return and live with him.

The presence of the tablets in the home, he explained to the court, were for an entirely different purpose.

Gave Her His Earnings.
He said that the only reason he could give for his wife's action was that she was homesick and has grown not to love him. He told the court that every Saturday he came home, he turned over his entire week's earnings to his wife and after she had left him he had paid her $12 a week pending a hearing on the action for separation.

At the conclusion of the evidence, Justice Morschauser said that the charge against the husband was too bald to be believed by the court. He did not question the sincerity of Mrs. Bayer in believing that she was being poisoned but he did believe that the desire to return home to her parents was the principal reason for the action. He warned her that her parents in taking her in were placing themselves in a position to be the defendants in a damage action. Chris Flanagan of this city was attorney for Mr. Bayer, while Paul A. Rieser represented Mrs. Bayer. The wife's action was denied and the court informed the husband he had a good ground for a counter action if he desired.

Sandow, Strong Man, Is Dead
By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 14.—Eugene Sandow, known the world over as a strong man, is dead.

Born in Koenigsberg, Germany, in 1867, Sandow, though frail and sickly in his youth studied physical culture and developed for himself a bodily perfection which has probably not been equaled in modern times.

After obtaining a certificate as doctor of anatomy at a medical college in Brussels, Sandow went to England where he gained a reputation as an amateur wrestler and athlete.

He made many theatrical tours in the United States and performed several sensational stunts. In San Francisco he agreed to wrestle a lion provided the lion's teeth were bound with pads. After a terrific struggle the lion was taken from the arena to prevent Sandow from injuring himself.

His feats of strength included the lifting of an eight hundred pound weight on his chest. He frequently broke cane boards three inches thick with a punch of his fist.

Arraign Alleged Violators Here

Federal Agents Working in Columbia and Dutchess Counties Bring Persons Charged With Violating Volstead Law to Kingston for Arraignment.

Federal agents at work in Columbia and Dutchess counties several days ago succeeded in securing evidence and as a result several alleged violators of the Volstead law were brought before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connelly Tuesday afternoon. Complaints were made by the two agents against the men, charging possession of liquor.

Charles P. Malloy, who gave his business as farmer and hotel manager at Hollowville, Columbia county, waived examination before the commissioner and was held under $500 bail for appearance when called before the United States district court in New York.

Chauncey Killmer of 29 North Third street, Hudson, was also held under $500 bail when he waived examination.

Joseph Witko, of Witko Brothers at Millerville, Columbia county, waived examination and was held under $500 bail for appearance later.

Mr. Fitzgerald of 704 Gifford Place, Hudson, was discharged by the commissioner.

In two other cases where the agents seized what they alleged was beer of more than one-half of one per cent, no action was taken pending the chemical analysis of the chemist.

Health Station At Marlborough

Demonstration Child Health Consultation to Be Held on Opening Day, Monday, November 2, by State Department of Health.

The new Child Health Station in Marlborough will be formally opened on Monday, November 2, with a Demonstration Child Health Consultation by the New York State Department of Health and the arrangements for the opening have been completed by Dr. F. W. Laidlaw, district state health officer, with the Marlborough Nursing Association, and Mrs. D. F. Taylor reports that already much interest has been shown and the mothers are very enthusiastic about the station.

Each consultation is open to 20 well children of pre-school age whose parents have made appointment with the Nursing Association beforehand and will consist of a careful physical examination of all parts of the body by a physician and a lecture to mothers on child hygiene. The consultations are conducted mainly to educate the mother in periodic health examination under the theory that the first six years are the most critical of a child's life where health and care are concerned. There is no expense connected with the consultation. No medical treatment will be administered but should any child need observation or treatment a complete diagnosis of the case will be presented to the family physician.

The hours of examination are from 9:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. The examining physician is Dr. Archibald Dean, State nurse in attendance are Miss Wood and Miss Church.

In order that the plans may be carried out successfully, Miss Strohmman will be provided with appointment cards and will visit the homes where there are infant and pre-school children to explain to the parents the object and reasons for children's health consultations. Each mother will be given a definite appointment so that neither her time nor that of the physician will be wasted, thereby avoiding long waits in the consultation room which is almost sure to be crowded.

Mothers bringing their children to the consultations will be requested to be present fifteen minutes before the appointed time so that there will be the least possible amount of time lost for one person being late can easily disarrange the schedule of the physician for a whole day. Appointments will be made for children between the ages of six months and six years of age and who are apparently well. No children other than those for whom appointments have been made will be examined.

Milk From Typhoid Farm Still Banned

Health Board Informed That 20 of the 27 Typhoid Cases in Kingston in September Occurred in Families Who Used Milk From Abata's Farm at Flatbush—Abata Now Making Italian Cheese.

Of the twenty-seven cases of typhoid fever in Kingston during September, twenty cases were traced to Abata's dairy farm at R. F. D. No. 4, Flatbush, and the ban against sale of his milk in Kingston is still in force although he appeared before the board of health Tuesday evening seeking information as to when he could resume selling milk on his route in the city. He produces sixty quarts of milk a day and is now making Italian cheese of the milk.

Report on Typhoid.
Dr. Daniel Connelly reported on the typhoid fever situation in Kingston, stating, "During the month of September there were 27 cases of typhoid fever reported and four deaths. Of this number 15 cases were traced to a dairy farm; five others were occasional users of this same milk supply. There were three cases on the farm itself. Faeces specimen submitted for examination from all other members of the family proved negative."

Was Boy Typhoid Carrier?
"It was learned there were a number of visitors entertained on the farm during August. All were well with the exception of nephew, a boy of 17, who had been sick in New York city during July and came to the farm August 2, and stayed until September 6."

"It was claimed at the farm this was not a sick boy, but a 'weak' boy. During his stay he gained 15 pounds which makes it appear as if this boy might be the source of infection. The onset of the cases fits in with the time this boy was on the farm. The onset of the earliest case was August 17, about fifteen days after his arrival."

Tracing Boy in New York.
Dr. Connelly stated that Dr. Laidlaw, sanitary inspector of this district from the state health department, had been in Kingston during September assisting in tracing the source of infection. He had taken the matter up with New York city health officials regarding the boy, but no report had been received from New York as yet.

No Cases in Two Weeks.
"There have been no new cases of typhoid fever reported in Kingston in the past two weeks," said Dr. Connelly. He then called specific attention to the dairy farm, stating that Abata was present at the meeting seeking information as to when he could resume selling his milk in the city. Abata's house is within the city while his barn stands in the town of Ulster, on the Flatbush road.

Refuse Abata Permission.
"If Abata resumes the selling of milk," said Dr. Connelly, "it will mean that we will have more typhoid fever cases. I would not feel safe to allow him to sell milk here, and to safeguard the health of the city I have refused to allow him to sell his milk here and will continue to do so."

Cases Traced to Abata's Milk.
Three of Abata's children have been down with typhoid and fifteen cases of typhoid were to families where he delivered milk and five other cases were in families who used his milk occasionally. The other seven cases were in Dr. Connelly's territory.

Abata Couldn't See Why.
Mr. Abata was given the privilege of the floor and said he was willing to do everything the board wanted to keep his farm clean and he didn't see why he couldn't sell his milk. He said he had had his herd of cows examined, and produced a veterinarian's certificate showing that his herd was free from disease. He said that three he had been forbidden to sell his milk in the city, he was going to make Italian cheese.

Ban Still in Force.
The board said that if the board of health matter is a matter to be allowed to continue to refuse to allow Abata to sell his milk in the city.

"A typhoid farm like yours," said Dr. Connelly, "is a danger to the city."

No Room for Discussion.
The board said it was apparent that there was no room for discussion on the matter and that the board would continue to refuse to allow Abata to sell his milk in the city.

Belted Waist in Fashion Picture

Flares Everywhere; Sleeves Mostly Long, Paris Openings Indicate.

If the early fall collections of Paris do not indicate any revolutionary changes in the fashion world, they at least evidence the progressive and rational evolution of the mode, observes a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. The widened silhouette has become general and the skirt, while remaining short and wide, often minimizes the effect by means of the irregular hemline. Below are sketchy outlines of some of the early showings.

Doenillet—The front and side flares, used separately or together, are the arresting feature of the new Doenillet silhouette as exploited in his autumn collection. Concentrated shirring is characteristic method of obtaining this effect. A curving waistline which reaches its top apex at the front acknowledges the return of that important landmark, and belts are a typical means of emphasizing it. Sleeves remain long and occasionally add a decorative touch near the cuffs, while the turnover collar competes with the high neckline of last season. Suits are numerous and incorporate both the long and short jacket types.

Lenier—The full silhouette is adopted without compromise by Lenier, who achieves the distension by means of the circular cut and side flares. A definitely higher waistline, which just falls short of its normal haven, is accented by means of belts and belted effects. The princess silhouette is a notable feature of the more formal gowns, and brilliant hues are particularly characteristic of the mode du soir. Sleeves are generally long and collars high, although the turn-over collar is not neglected. Trimmings are elaborate and include Persian and Syrian designs.

Cyber—This designer has accepted the full silhouette with reservations, occasionally reverting to the straight-line of earlier vintage. Even when the flare is employed, it is hardly emphasized. The waistline is more marked than last season but it remains as low. Rather simple dresses share honors with the tailored suit in this collection, and a significant feature is the use of the belt on both types of costume to emphasize the waistline.

Rolande—The back flare leads all the rest in the Rolande autumn collection although many other full-lined variations are noted. A formal note pervades the entire showing and elaborate models rule for afternoons as well as evening. Black is a distinctive color note for formal afternoons and occasions du soir. Rolande solves the problem of skirt length by offering the irregular hemline in long points which distract attention from the length or brevity of the skirt.

Puritan Demureness in This Priscilla Collar

Priscilla may have worn just such a Puritan collar as the model in net and lace shown here, but the modern maid has added a coquettish bow of black moire ribbon, making a charming combination.

Hatched by Hot Water

Even pheasant chicks belonging to Clarence P. Billings of North Adams acknowledge a hot-water battle as their mother. Set under a hen who abandoned them after sitting only a part of the incubation period, they were removed by Mr. Billings. With the aid of a covering cloth and constant attention, the hot-water bottle finished the job and hatched 11 chicks out of a setting of 15 eggs—Boston Globe.

McNALLY AGAIN ORGANIZES THE ORIGINAL SHAMROCKS

The Original Shamrocks is the name of the new basketball team that will represent East Kingston the coming winter. The Irish named quintet set away to a poor start last year, but Manager McNally says that they won't get a poor start this season and before many weeks have advanced, this team will be as good as they come in semi-pro basketball circles. The Shamrocks will play mostly all of their games on the road until a home court is secured. The players and schedule of the Shamrocks will be announced in a few days. Any semi-pro team wishing to book this outfit should communicate with Manager William T. McNally, 15 John street, East Kingston, or call 764-7-12.

Tunic-and-Skirt Suits Popular for Fall Wear

The trim little tunic-and-skirt suits, or jumpers, are favorite outfits for autumn wear. Although they were originally intended for sports wear, they are to be seen everywhere. The model pictured here indicates that the scarf collar of vivet is the last touch of smartness for the jumper suit.

Thread Work Is Used as Trimming for Underwear

Drawn-in thread work provides a simple and delightful way of trimming underwear of lawn, crepe de chine or china silk, anything that is dainty and soft. It is good on children's dresses.

The work is done in the following way: First draw out one thread—as for hemstitching—then take a length of button-hole silk in the color which you wish to introduce; knot this to the next thread in the material, and when drawing this thread out the button-hole silk is drawn in. The reason for drawing out the first thread is to make room for the thicker thread to be drawn in. Use another color for the next line, and a third shade for the line below it. You will be delighted with the result.

A heavier line may be introduced by using a double length of the button-hole silk. Before drawing this in pull out two threads from the material, one each side of the thread which is to be used for knotting to the contrasting color. Measure the length of button-hole silk required, double it on itself and then fasten the loop to the thread in the material which you are going to pull. Care must be taken not to make a clumsy knot, so that the thread will go through quite easily.

Buckles and Buttons Much Used Ornaments

Buckles of many kinds are among the latest slipper ornaments. Good-looking buckles for daytime are made to match or to harmonize with the shoe. Some of these are original and charming—in bronze, jet, steel and leather. All of the French buckles appear to be smaller, daintier than the styles in last season's footwear. For evening there is apparently but one buckle, and that is set with brilliants, with genuine diamonds, with old paste, white sapphires, or white topaz, or just with rhinestones. Some unusually attractive designs are to be had: flower sprays, set in semi-circles, mercury wings, butterflies and other pretty things.

Alongside the jeweled buckles one finds buttons for frocks and coats, like those worn by the dandies of the French court. They are used a lot by fashionable couturiers who are trimming many models with buttons of one sort and another. They add a bright touch and are especially effective on black velvet. Other than the buttons set with stones are many artistic designs most decorative on a dress that is otherwise without trimming.

Hosiery Glove Promises to Be Paris Winter Fad

Short gloves with flaring cuffs of a different colored kid will be the smart thing this winter, judging by early showings.

Together with long hair and high boots the long, elbow-length glove has apparently lived its day. This year's gloves will barely cover the wrists. Some will be made of silk, of the same color and texture as the stockings to be worn. Such gloves may be changed each time they are worn and although they are the most expensive they last the shortest time.

Afternoon and morning frocks will have sleeves—long, tight, closely furled sleeves descending into the gloves. From the elbow to the shoulder some of these sleeves are more stripes of ribbons, but from the elbow to the wrist the flesh must be covered. So dictate the stylist.

Novel Handkerchiefs

Fascinating little handkerchiefs have tiny figures hand-blocked in one corner. These have little white words or tiny bits of ribbon which conceal a minute powder puff.

Angora Goats

As a rule Angora goats are small, weighing from 40 to 100 pounds. Sometimes in the United States they weigh as much as 150 pounds, with an occasional one even heavier than this. Both males and females usually have horns and beards. The fleece weighs from 3 to 12 pounds.

some parishes in Massachusetts, parishes elsewhere, had a common "rest house" for all comers to rest in, and the assemblies on Sunday, if in the parsonage or the noon were in danger of proving too much to those who were prone to the society of other human beings, hence the parsons "were put under great difficulties" to have the interval between the services filled up with the reading aloud of many books and other exercises to keep the mind in a becoming frame.—Philadelphia.

Moscow Faces Death Menace

Space for Each Person Only
More Than 100,000—Health Conditions Are Bad—Soviet Government Outlay for Buildings
Not 1/10th of Amount Needed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Moscow, Oct. 14.—Housing conditions in Moscow are growing worse. Nobody believed it possible, but statistics just published show that by January, 1926, the average amount of dwelling space available for each inhabitant in the city will be 50 square feet, as compared with 55 square feet in 1922.

This means that each Muscovite at his disposal as living room, dining room, kitchen and bath, a space 10 feet long and five feet wide—not a quarter as large as an American bath room, and only a little bigger than a coffin.

The consequences to health are immediately apparent. Those to be expected are becoming evident.

One example is the fact that diarrhoea, in many cases, are reported to continue to live together. This has led the Moscow Real Estate Administration to petition for law to compel the courts or bureau granting divorces to decide which of the two parties to a divorce has a right to the room occupied by them, and to compel the other party to move.

But such a law would only populate the parks, for the victims of domestic infelicity have literally no place to go.

Ordinary rooms occupied by two families of four persons each are no longer exceptional here. There are probably not 1,000 rooms in the city occupied by only one person. It seemed to be a matter of course, when, of two men living together, one marries and brings his wife to live in the same room, trust to a certain to insure the privacy of their "home."

All of this might be supportable as a temporary condition if there were any relief in sight, but the Moscow Soviets building program, moving every available penny to the object, looks forward during the coming year only to keeping pace with the increase in population.

It proposes to spend $26,000,000 building during 1926, and with this sum hopes to keep matters from coming worse. But whether even this program will be successful is not together certain in view of the experience of the State Building trusts, which, without exception, ended the 1925 season with a loss. Forty-seven of them went bankrupt, causing a loss of $2,000,000 to the state, and the managers of fifteen are on trial for corruption or criminal negligence.

These failures were ascribed for the most part to "lack of capital and experience." Next year they will have more experience, but the capital is still lacking.

Aggravating the situation is the sudden jump in the birth-rate following the recovery from the famine of 1921. Births now exceed deaths in Moscow by about 30,000 a year. This increase is aside from the constant stream of persons who pour into Moscow from the provinces, seeking fame and a Soviet career.

Figures given by the Moscow Real Estate Administration show that there have been added 17,000 rooms to the city's buildings during the last two years. The natural increase in population would fill each of these rooms with four persons as soon as was completed.

Since the departure from the system of pure Communism, under which lodgings were free, but under which they became uninhabitable through lack of repairs, all tenants are paid, scaled in accordance to their social classification, workers being the least, and "Nepmen," or private business men, the most.

The rent is entirely devoted to the keep of the houses. An official survey just made shows, however, that in 10 per cent of the houses living central heating, i.e. in 7,000, the apparatus is out of order. Out of 209,485 apartments only 126,000 are supplied with running water; the rest take water from wells, rivers and lakes.

Moscow is not, however, typical of the housing situation for the whole country. Most of the crowding was caused by the concentration here of the whole machinery of the government, with its tens of thousands of employees, when Moscow was made the capital. Leningrad, on the other hand, was left comparatively empty, and five-room apartments are a drag on the market there. In the attempt to relieve the Moscow situation, the government recently moved a group of schools from this city to Leningrad, but the effect has been irreparable.

School Savings Banking Grows

Five and a Half Million Dollars Increase in Aggregate Bank Balances Shown in Past Year—Bank Balances Now Over Twenty-five Millions Dollars.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 14.—(Special)—School savings in the United States for the year 1924-1925 increased in aggregate bank balances by five and a half million dollars, with a growth of $30,000 in the total number of pupils participating. It is shown in reports made to the American Bankers' Association.

"The reports contain many factors to encourage belief in the permanence of school savings as a part of the educational program in the public schools," says W. Espey Albis, deputy manager of the association in charge of the savings bank division.

"During the year closing June 30, 1925, the number of reporting school savings systems has increased from 682 which embraced 742 districts to 760 which embraces 1,557 districts; the number of schools from 9,080 to 10,163; the number of pupils enrolled in schools having savings systems from 3,095,012 to 3,348,632; the participants from 2,236,328 to 2,869,497; the deposits from $14,981,535.40 to $16,961,560.72; and the bank balances from $20,433,144.64 to $25,913,531.15.

"The number of schools having school savings systems increased 11.9 per cent; the enrollment of pupils in districts having school savings increased 24.3 per cent; pupil participation increased 28.3 per cent; deposits increased 13.1 per cent and school balances 26.8 per cent.

"The present report is significant when compared with that for the year 1919-1920, the first year comprehensive statistics were available. The number of schools having school savings banking has increased 271.4 per cent; the enrollment in school savings districts has increased 278.9 per cent; participants 520.2 per cent; deposits 506.1 per cent, and bank balances 516.8 per cent.

"Possibly, the best basis from which to judge the increased favor secured by school savings banking is found in the results obtained in a group of about four hundred districts where school savings banking has been established for two or more years. In this group during the year the enrollment has increased 6.5 per cent; participation by pupils, 15 per cent; deposits, 108.1 per cent; bank balances, 48.3 per cent. The gain during the year in this group was even more marked than the gain in the same group during the preceding year, 1923-1924, when the enrollment gained 4 per cent; pupil participation, 8 per cent; deposits, 23 per cent and bank balances, 44 per cent.

In the honor roll of school savings banking prepared by the Savings Bank Division of the Association, comprising districts in which official records show that at least 75 per cent of the registered pupils are participating in the movement, the following cities appear as the first ten in each class:

Class A, cities with school enrollment over 10,000: Duluth, Minnesota, 99.8 per cent participating; Huntington, West Virginia, 97.2; New Britain, Connecticut, 97.0; Pawtucket, Rhode Island, 96.4; Springfield, Ohio, 95.2; Columbus, Ohio, 94.1; Sioux City, Iowa, 93.5; Wichita, Kansas, 93.1; Minneapolis, Minnesota, 93.0; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, 91.7. There are 23 districts in all listed in this class.

Class B, enrollment 5,001 to 10,000: Kingston, Pennsylvania, 99.5 per cent participating; Superior, Wisconsin, 97.8; Plainfield, New Jersey, 97.6; Cedar Rapids, Iowa, 97.0; Winston-Salem, North Carolina, 96.7; Evanston, Illinois, 96.0; Pontiac, Michigan, 93.0; Meriden, Connecticut, 92.9; Everett, Washington, 91.5; Jackson, Michigan, 90.0. There are 26 districts in this class.

Class C, enrollment 2,001 to 5,000: Iron Mountain, Michigan, 100 per cent participating; Marshfield, Wisconsin, 100; Pittston, Pennsylvania, 100; Elmira, New York, 99.9; Tiffin, Ohio, 99.3; Mechanicsville, New York, 99.1; Ridgewood, New Jersey, 99.0; Okmulgee, Oklahoma, 98.4; Freeport, New York, 98.2. There are 82 districts in this class.

Class D, enrollment under 2,000: Twelve cities in this class have attained 100 per cent participation and are as follows: Caspian, Michigan; Clearfield, Pennsylvania; Chubb, Wisconsin; Downingtown, Pennsylvania; Greenwood, Mississippi; Hancock, Massachusetts; Lake Forest, Illinois; Orrville, Ohio; Port Jervis, New York; South Manchester, Connecticut; West View, Pennsylvania; Waltham, Maine. There are 69 districts listed in this class.

When lightning strikes a tree the ordinary result is to splinter the wood or strip off bark through the sudden generation of steam, says Nature Magazine. In the great majority of cases the tree is not set on fire. Nevertheless the aggregate number of forest fires started by lightning is, in many parts of the country, greater than the number due to all other causes combined.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

JOHNSON ACT WILL BE UP FOR ACTION

These provisions of the Johnson act, World war legislation drawn up and sponsored by the American Legion, and caught in the legislative jam at the close of the last congress, will be pressed for passage at the next session by the national rehabilitation committee of the Legion, according to Watson B. Miller, chairman.

Among the provisions to be pressed for passage are: To permit the payment of disability compensation retroactively to April of 1917; to provide a permanent rate of compensation for arrested cases of tuberculosis; to provide for the reinstatement of insurance by disabled veterans who are unable to pay the back premiums and interest; to provide family allowances for all beneficiaries who are totally disabled; to remove all dates for the conclusion of vocational training; to remove all time limits for the filing of disability claims; to provide for the setting up of a permanent medical corps in the veterans' bureau service.

Chairman Miller declared that it will be necessary to secure an appropriation from congress at the December session amounting to approximately $13,850,000 so that the veterans' bureau can carry out its program for the construction of new veterans' hospitals. During the last two sessions authorization was granted to the director of the bureau to expend $10,850,000 for this purpose, but due to legislative complications arising at the end of each session only $8,850,000 actual cash was appropriated.

Wilson Memorial Backed by Georgia Department

Friends of Woodrow Wilson in all parts of the United States will contribute to a fund to establish a college as a national memorial to him in Georgia, the state where he grew to manhood, in the opinion of Col. Edward M. House, intimate friend and personal adviser of President Wilson. The memorial college to Wilson was proposed by the department of Georgia, American Legion.

In a recent interview with a representative of the temporary board of trustees for the proposed college, Colonel House declared that he would do all in his power to assist in the establishment of such a memorial. Pleasant A. Stovall, former minister of Switzerland during the Wilson administration, who is leading the movement to found the Wilson college, said: "The value of Colonel House's support in this undertaking cannot be overemphasized. He is known the world over as one of President Wilson's closest friends."

Severe Penalties for Embezzlement of Funds

Guardians embezzling funds paid by the government to their wards as World war beneficiaries will be subject to prosecution by the federal government as a result of legislation passed at the recent session of congress. American Legion officials announced at Washington recently. Punishment is fixed at a fine of $2,000 or imprisonment at hard labor for five years or both. The Legion supported the legislation.

Letters were sent recently by the Veterans' bureau to clerks of Probate courts inquiring into guardianships of incompetent veterans and children of veterans, many of them orphans. As a result, guardians in six months returned to the government $100,000, mostly in uncashed government checks. A single letter contained an entire series of uncashed $100 checks going back to 1919.

There are, according to Veterans' bureau records, 9,519 guardians of minors and 15,000 guardians of adults in permanent total cases. The number of minors under guardianship is estimated at 30,000.

Offered to Pay His Way to Any Foreign Country

The successor to "The Man Without a Country" was found at Omaha, Neb., recently—almost.

F. M. Merriam, commander of Second post of the American Legion, was commissioned to go to Omaha and look for a youth who, in the columns of an Omaha newspaper, begged to be told one good reason why he should continue to grace the United States of America with his presence, co-operation and endorsement. The discontented youth said: "The time is coming when millions of Americans will enrich other nations with their presence and leave the United States, such as it is, to an anti-Legion organization, as it deserves to be."

The Second post replied promptly that it would pay the disappointed young man's way to some foreign land if he would promise never to return. The young man in another letter accepted the offer—provided that he might return to this country as often as he wished "on visits."

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

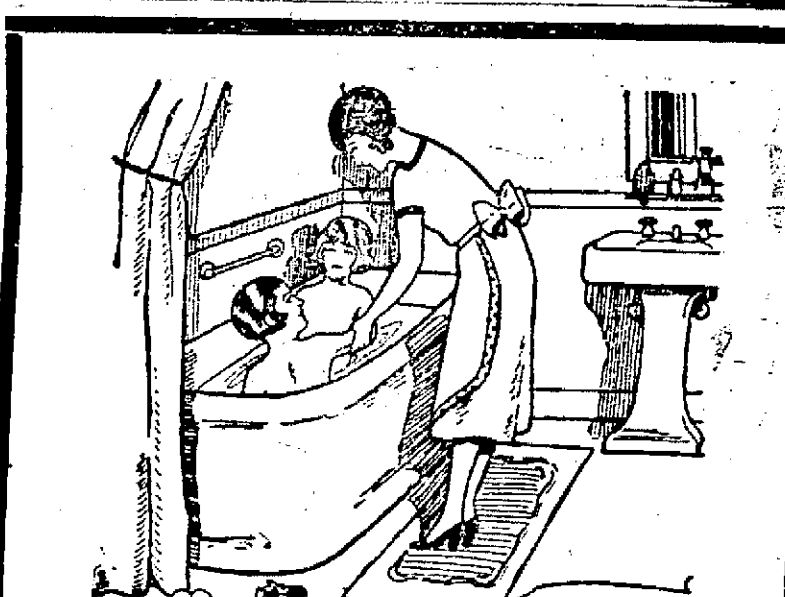

Lillian Gish, "The First Lady of the Screen," will appear at the Reedy Theater for four days opening tonight in "Romola" by George Eliot, with Dorothy Gish. In "Romola" the Gish sisters are together again and they are said to be more wonderful than ever. A special musical program has been arranged by Jimmie Connors and his Lux Orchestra.

One of the greatest aggregations of musical comedy stars on tour is now playing at the Kingston Opera House for the entire week with three complete changes of program. Commencing today the company will present a brand new play entitled "Sweethearts and Wives" the brilliant of musical comedy hits. This company of players number over twenty-five people and carry special scenic effects and a gorgeous array of costumes for each play. On Thursday evening there will be a "Gaiety Contest" and on Friday evening "A Charleston Contest" and applications are now being received for the same. The photoplay for today and Thursday will be "Greater Than A Crown" featuring Edmund Lowe. On Friday and Saturday another change of program being "Broadway Hilarity" another catchy musical hit and the photoplay "Tainted Money" with Eva Novak and William Fairbanks.

At the Auditorium this evening "Merton of the Movies" a James Cruze production starring Glenn Hunter and Viola Dana will be screened.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

THE MAPLE LEAVES

It was in the autumn that the maple leaves grew bold and brave.

In the spring they had been buds and had shown, quite delicately it is true, their love of color.

During the summer they had given shade from the sun and had been lovely to look upon.

But in the autumn they were older and they dared more. Then they changed their gay colors.

Reds and oranges and browns and flame colors were the colors they chose and each leaf looked a little different from any of the others.

Together they gave a brilliance to the autumn, and individually they were as brilliant and gay as ever leaves could be.

The silver birch trees were exquisite, sometimes with the sunlight streaming through the woods and shaded roads to light upon them, here and there "nd everywhere.

Sometimes the moon peeped in to see the silver birches and felt so much at home among them that at once the silver birches and the moon were good friends. You could have told, had you seen them, that the moonlight was whispering silver secrets to the silver birches.

But the maple trees were especially chosen as the favorites. There seemed more strength, more color to them. They even seemed lovelier than the silver birches.

There were the spruce trees, of course, and the fir trees and the feathery, fancy backstair trees of such soft green color. There were the pine trees, the northern pines with branches only around the top parts of the trees or growing unevenly on one side more than another. These branches always seemed windy. Even on quiet days they seemed the trees that the wind must love with their branches always in swaying positions.

Without these none of the scenery would be as it was. But the maple trees were needed, too. Especially in the autumn when they became bold and brave.

Such daring colors as they appeared in such vivid, bright colors. They brightened up the country wherever they were. They were so free of dullness, so free of worry. What did it matter to them that in a short time they would drop and be tossed by the wind as the wind chose to toss them, or lie upon the ground quietly until with the fog and the rain, the cold and the snow, the mud and the chill, they became colorless, wet, miserable leaves?

It was enough that for a time they could be so brilliant. And the trees that they left standing straight out of the ground, would carry on the ways of maple trees.

More buds would appear in the spring, the summer would see them full-fledged leaves, and once again the autumn would make them brave and bold.

Yes, the autumn was their time. Their time for a glorious farewell.

They would leave the spruce and the fir trees to remain green throughout the winter. But they would be remembered by their color. They would uphold the traditions of maple trees and of autumn foliage.

People would say to them, just as they had said of the leaves the year before, and of the year before that, and so on, far back in the autumn history of leaves: "Never were the leaves more wonderful than this year. The color today was beyond any description."

The sun shone down upon them and glowed with the sun's own warmth and a little added warmth of glowing pleasure, and the sky stayed all clear and blue so as not to upset the perfection of the greatest of all nature's paintings—the masterpiece—autumn. The sea, the rivers, the lakes, the bays all glowed, too, on days like this.

But the sun loved them above all, as from its height the sun could so easily do.

So it was that the sun whispered a secret to the faint breezes that blew ever so little on the clear autumn afternoon.

"People feel my warmth these days that are becoming so chilly. They say what a difference it makes when the sun goes down for then they know it is really becoming cold and chill. But I am a little warmer than ever these days—I glow with such pleasure at the beauty of the world."

What we do belongs to what we are; and what we are is what becomes of us.—Van Dyke.

TIMELY FOODS

Now that green peppers are plentiful they should be used freely as flavor and as main dishes.

Stuffed Green Peppers.—Take good sized and sharp peppers for stuffing, parboil until slightly tender after removing the tips and the white fiber and seeds. Place in gem pans with a bit of water around them and fill with any desired stuffing. Ham, bread crumbs, a bit of onion or celery and an egg to bind. Any kind of meat or nuts are especially good. If moisture is needed add milk.

Onion Chowder.—Peel and chop enough onions to make a pint. Prepare enough potatoes to make a quart. Place the onions in a kettle, adding two cupfuls of water and four of milk, season with salt. Cook the onions thirty minutes, then add the potatoes and cook an hour longer with a teaspoonful each of parsley and chervil and one chopped sweet pepper. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and serve.

Baked Peppers and Corn.—Take fresh corn cut and scraped from the ear—canned will do—using one pint. Chop fine two sweet green peppers after removing the seeds and white veins. Mix the corn and peppers, turn into a baking dish, season with salt and pepper and pour over one cupful of butter and a beaten egg. Bake in an oven about forty minutes.

Fried Corn and Peppers.—To a pint of cut corn, fresh from the cob, add one finely minced pepper. Put into a frying pan with plenty of butter, stir for the first ten minutes until the corn and peppers are well blended, then cover and simmer for half an hour. Watch carefully to keep from burning.

Pepper and Cabbage Salad.—Shred a small head of cabbage, add a finely shredded green pepper and mix with a good salad dressing.

Quince Honey.—Wash and grate the quince, peel and all, and cook with equal parts of sugar until thick. This may be used in numerous ways. As a garnish for ice cream it is especially good, or a spoonful or two added to a dish of apple sauce makes that homely dish something out of the ordinary.

WOMEN INTERESTED IN THEIR OLD AGE.

Do professional women give a thought to the morrow? Is old age and a future inability to work taken into consideration by women commanding good salaries and in the possession of youth and vigorous health? An interesting side light are the early returns and applications from women in all parts of the country, daily pouring in at the retirement fund of the Y. W. C. A. offices.

According to 3,514 women now employed within the Young Women's Christian Association in the United States, the retirement fund went into operation September 1. Miss Frances Critchenden, executive secretary, expresses herself as highly gratified at the number of applications received in the first 30 days. Each participant, she explained, is pledged to save 5 per cent of her salary, monthly paying it into the fund.

"The fund aims to produce (under normal conditions of service and upon retirement after at least thirty years) an allowance of approximately one-half of the average salary for the entire period of service," she explained. "The individual saving is matched also provide annuity in case of retirement or disability."

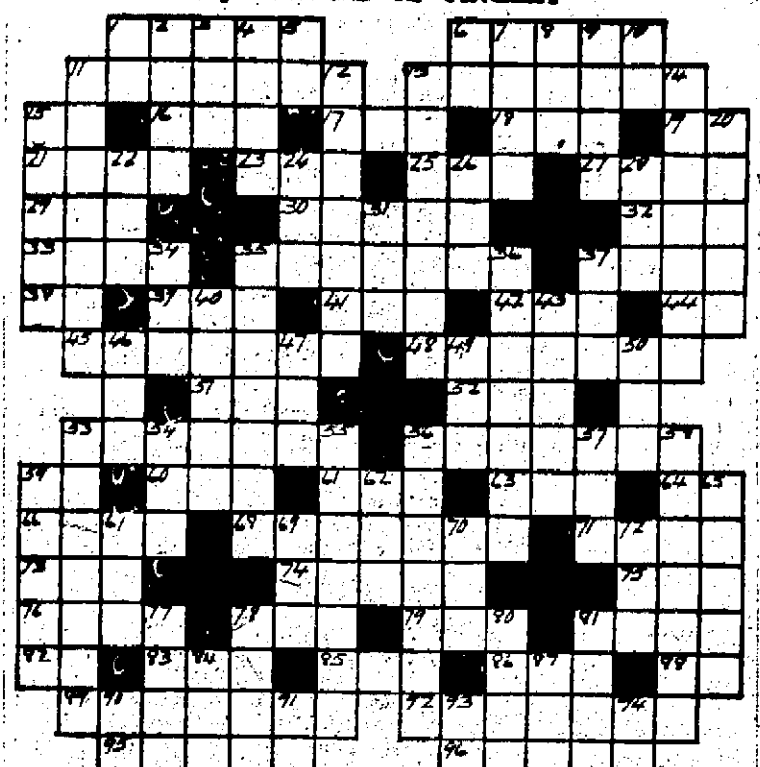

In case of death while still in active service of the Y. W. C. A. the same sum paid to the participant's beneficiary or estate.

This Hupmobile Eight is produced under circumstances which are remarkably favorable to its present low price.

The most modern manufacturing equipment, the large production necessary for the largest-selling straight eight in the world, and lower overhead are the fundamental reasons for the new lower prices now in effect.

At its original figure, the Hupmobile Eight was extraordinary money's worth.

Today, it is undoubtedly the greatest value ever offered in the fine car field.

Drive this great Eight—and you will say that such performance is worth twice the money. Give yourself your own kind of a demonstration—today.

Plots to Murder Chief

While the Wop in Alleged Confession Declared Underworld Characters Offered New York Gangsters $7,400 to Kill Chief of Police Funston of Schenectady.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Albany and Schenectady authorities were co-operating today in an effort to run down clues in an alleged plot to murder William H. Funston, chief of police of Schenectady.

The plot against Chief Funston's life was barred by William Ross, alias Willie the Wop, held on charges of robbery and assault. In an alleged confession to John T. Delaney, assistant district attorney, Ross declared that five Schenectady underworld characters had offered New York city gangsters $7,400 to kill Chief Funston.

According to Ross, $1,500 of the money already had been paid and the remainder was to be paid when Funston was killed.

Assistant District Attorney Delaney said Ross also revealed the names of gangsters alleged to have killed Police Captain Albert L. Youmans in Schenectady on November 15, 1924, and Sergeant Thomas P. Oates, of the Troy police department, in March, 1925.

Chief Funston was in New York today with Schenectady detectives searching for gangsters believed to have been implicated in the plot. Funston was named head of the Schenectady police department last winter. He has waged a relentless war on gangsters and underworld characters.

District Attorney Blessing of Schenectady and Assistant District Attorney Delaney of Albany planned to question Ross today for more details of the alleged plot.

Ross's confession is expected to solve nearly a score of holdups in the capital district in the last two years, according to Delaney. Ross was arrested last week in New York. He is alleged to be a member of a ring which has been selling stolen automobiles in this part of the state.

"New England Domination" Ends

Removal of Lodge, Weeks and Gillet Ends So-Called "New England Domination" of the Government—Davis Sworn In as War Secretary.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The so-called "New England domination" of the government, about which western members of Congress used to complain early in the Coolidge administration, was definitely ended today when Dwight F. Davis, of Missouri, was sworn in as secretary of war, succeeding John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts.

The oath was administered by Chief Justice William H. Taft.

Massachusetts once held a dominant position in the Coolidge administration. Calvin Coolidge, a former Bay State governor, was in the White House; Henry Cabot Lodge was Republican leader of the Senate; Frederick H. Gillet was speaker of the house; John W. Weeks was in the cabinet, and there were enough other Bay States scattered around in lesser positions to incite Westerners to raise the cry "New England domination."

Death, ill-health and the varying tides of political favor have removed Lodge, Weeks and Gillet.

3 Killed in Drop Of Nine Stories

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 14.—Three men were killed and two injured today when a scaffold on which four of them had been working on a thirty-two story loft building at 200 Madison avenue tumbled from the street below—a drop of nine stories.

The dead: John Dowd, 42; C. Kelley, 50; and J. D. Carney.

The three men, all laborers, were instantly killed.

The building is between 36th and 37th streets, near the residence of J. P. Morgan.

The men were hurled to the roof of the temporary sidewalk cover erected during the construction, and thence to the street. Ambulances from nearby hospitals were rushed to the scene and the street, a busy thoroughfare at that point, roped off from traffic.

The Chicago firm of Marshall Field & Company has leased several floors of the building.

The injured men are George Grant and Pasquale.

Trapper Lost on Mt. Washington

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Gorham, N. H., Oct. 14.—Footprints in the snow, piled up in drifts ten feet deep by a wind blowing with a velocity of nearly 100 miles an hour in zero temperature, was the only trace found by a searching party of Mack Anghehart, 52, experienced woodsman and trapper, lost on Mount Washington today.

Nearly exhausted, the searching party of six men came back from the mountain top and another searching party started out.

The searchers admitted that they held out only slight hope of finding Anghehart alive.

The party of searchers was led by Elliot C. Libby, manager of a hotel at the base of the mountain and the Mount Washington carriage road.

Others in the party were Fred Pike, Raymond Tripp, Dennis Pelletier, Joseph Dodge and a guide known as "White Head."

Anghehart had been stationed at the stage office on the mountain since the closing of the Summit house two weeks ago Monday, when the week end gale abated. Libby sent two men up the mountain to tell Anghehart to come down. The men found written in French on the wall of the stage office this message: "Left at 12 for Tuckerman's Ravine. No word."

The searching party made for the deep recess of the ravine, but the only trace of the lost woodsman was the footprints in the snow. "Weather conditions were terrible at the summit," said Libby. "The temperature was down near zero, the wind blowing nearly 100 miles an hour and snow was piled up ten feet deep. We had a hard time getting down."

"If Anghehart was caught in the ravine during the storm I fear he must have been driven insane. The wind howled so loudly that sleep would be out of the question."

The Ulster County Riding and Driving Club has another free treat in store for the horse trotting fans of the city and county. After the success of the public opening which was held Columbus Day, the club has decided to give from time to time racing cards which should attract good crowds. The next event will be held Saturday afternoon when free matinee races will be run off. There will be at least three classes commencing at 2 o'clock.

One of the features of the afternoon will be a match race between Oliver Mainstreet and Carcila, two local horses. Oliver Mainstreet is owned by Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., and Carcila is owned by Harry B. Walker. There is considerable rivalry between the two and on Saturday afternoon both horses will be driven by the owners which should inject some real rivalry in the race.

Admission will be free to the park Saturday afternoon and everyone is invited to attend as guests of the club.

THE FRATERNITY OF GRIEF

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

YOU have had grief—but so have I; I, too, have watched the closing tomb. My house has had the empty room. My heart the ache. Our loved ones die. But, oh, the company they meet Upon that far, celestial street. Where throngs of angels intertwine—My beloved and yours, your loved and mine.

I have had grief—but so have you; And, in my hour of deepest loss, I do not see the single cross—Thank God, I see the other two. Yes, my own loss has this much gain:

I feel the brotherhood of pain; And, kneeling here beside my own, I know the loss that you have known.

We have our grief—but so have all. In all our grieving all our grief. Must not be selfish. Pluck out least And gently let one petal fall Upon some spot where someone sleeps.

For whom some other woman weeps, For whom some man will mourn to-day; We have had grief—but so have they. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE SUBTLE SPIDER

HIDDEN in some dark corner, or perhaps right before your eyes the spider spins his silken web in which to entangle and destroy his unwary victim.

Whether you believe it or not, you are watched every hour of your earthly existence by some sort of vicious spider planning to entrap you.

If you are less watchful than he, if you do not take account of your words and actions and make a mental note of the trifling web-like things which are happening all about you, the spider will eventually outwit you.

And when once you become entangled in his invisible web a great sense of fear will descend upon you with the weight and swiftness of a raging deluge, of whose existence you did not before believe to be possible.

Falling into the spider's web is one of the deplorable misfortunes of the human kind. Everybody in life, from the rosy-cheeked schoolgirl to her mature parents, is liable to become entangled, for the spider is no respecter of youth or age.

A bewitching smile, a glance of the eye, a musical voice, a beaming countenance, an uncontrollable greed for wealth, may, in some way or another, prove to be the flowing thread of the terrible web spun out by a passing breeze to entrap you.

"Now," says the spider, as he spins another thread to make your captivity more certain, "now I am in position to continue our discussion."

Up to this moment you have succeeded in eluding him. And in your fancied security, as likely as not you have taunted and derided him, so now he is bent on mocking you, quite ready to resume the discussion.

But the manhood in you is going to outwit him.

You are going to wean from him his subtle power, by warning the world from your housetop to beware of his silken web which has through the ages strangled out love and hope, washed out eyes with tears and poisoned hearts until they have festered and died.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; its influence; your lucky day, lucky hour.

MELINDA

TOUGH not generally listed in English nomenclature and regarded rather as a product of the South in this country, Melinda has in reality an interesting history dating back to Spanish ballad lore. In that remote era, she was undoubtedly Melisenda and first appeared as the name of the wife of Don Garferos who was taken captive by the Moors, on the occasion of the feast that were represented by the puppet shows in which Don Quixote took an unfortunately lively interest.

Another Melisenda was Princess Melisenda who carried the uncanny crown of Jerusalem to the House of Anjou. It was a most natural step to eliminate the overabundance of syllables and contract the same to our present-day euphonious Melinda. For some inscrutable reason it caught the fancy of the South and its popularity there is still unquestioned.

The origin of Melinda's talkative nature is the most mysterious and fascinating of all genealogy and is believed to bestow upon its wearer the charm which comes from brilliancy, gentleness and ever-changing moods. It will prove for Melinda a talisman against sorrow. Monday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number.

600 Bottles of Beer in Barn

Federal Dry Agents Destroy 600 Bottles of Beverage and Haul Marcus Bechtold Before United States Commissioner.

Federal prohibition officers paid a visit to Kingston Tuesday afternoon. They appeared here to press charges against several out of town violators of the Volstead law and while in town stopped off long enough to make one investigation. They searched the barn located at 42 Prospect street and used as a bottling plant. On the premises they seized and destroyed over 600 bottles of beer which they allege contained more than the prescribed amount of alcohol and placed under arrest Marcus Bechtold.

Later Bechtold was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connelly and held under $500 bail to appear before the U. S. District Court at New York later.

Name Officers of Medical Society

Nominations Reported Tuesday Night—Election Occurs in December—Interesting Papers and Discussion on Physicians' Problems.

At the regular meeting of the Ulster County Medical Society held Tuesday evening at McCabe's restaurant on Wall street, officers were nominated to be elected at the annual meeting in December. The following were placed in nomination:

President, Dr. Mary Gage-Day; vice-president, Dr. Fred Snyder; secretary, Dr. Fred Voss; treasurer, Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek; censors, Dr. Nelson, Dr. Crispell of Mohonk, Dr. O'Meara, Dr. Stern, Dr. Holcomb; delegate to State Society, Dr. Emerick of Saugerties; alternate, Dr. Eastman; delegate to Third District Branch, Dr. Van Norstrand; alternate, Dr. Jacobson.

Dr. Jacobson read a very interesting paper on "Jaundice." The paper had been carefully and thoroughly prepared and was appreciated by the doctors in attendance who discussed the subject following the conclusion of the paper by Dr. Jacobson.

The society discussed the Post Graduate Medical Instruction Course for next year and decided to hold this course during the spring and fall months next year. This is a new department under the State Medical Society and is very much appreciated by the doctors of the county medical society. It gives an opportunity to hear prominent lecturers and continue a post graduate course for the doctors in their own town. The topics to be discussed at the course will be obstetrics, pediatrics, diseases of the heart, fractures, physical diagnosis and diseases of the kidneys.

Senator Ralston Critically Ill

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—United States Senator Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana may not live through the day.

His condition, already precarious, became alarmingly critical overnight.

"Senator Ralston has been unconscious since midnight and his condition is very grave indeed," said Frederick Van Nuy, one of Ralston's law partners.

Ralston is 68 years old. The senator, stricken with a heart ailment on his return from Washington last March, apparently was recovering when a chronic kidney complication set in which developed into uremic poisoning.

Notify Nations They Must Settle

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The American government has decided finally to use the big club of international credit to bring its quibbling debtors to the treasury window to take up their notes.

This, in effect, is what lay behind the blunt warning that has gone out from the White House to the world in general, and to Paris in particular, that American purse strings are to be closed to those nations that are evading their obligations to the United States.

Powerful members of congress are threatening to enact legislation this winter that will enable the government to control by law the business of foreign loans.

One such bill, it was learned today, would require in the treasury authority to "regulate" bankers loans to foreign governments in somewhat the same fashion that the interstate commerce commission now regulates railroad financing.

Big international bankers do not want to see such a bill enacted because it would put a big crimp in their business.

Consequently, it is the confident belief of administration officials that Wall Street will heed the White House warning and engage in no foreign financing without Washington's sanction. If unofficial sanction is withheld, national croquet, swallowed potatoes, pickles, jelly, ice cream and cake, coffee and tea.

Silo Suit Tried
In Supreme Court

Jury Finds That Man Who Bought It at Sheriff's Sale Is Entitled to It or the Money He Paid in Good Faith.

In the supreme court Tuesday afternoon an action for wrongfully taking of property brought by Edward E. Ragna against Ganse Beach, was taken up for trial before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury.

The action involves the possession of a silo. A man named Cook bought the Christopher N. DeWitt farm at Old Hurley and purchased the silo from Ragna, who had bought it on installments. Cook took the silo home. He asked plaintiff, Ragna, to make certain payments on the silo and agreed to reimburse him later. Cook, however, left shortly for parts unknown and in order to satisfy one of several judgments against Cook Sheriff Koltz levied on the silo which was in a barn on the Cook farm and had never been erected. The silo was sold to the defendant, Beach, for $200, and he removed it to his farm. Ragna, however, brought replevin proceedings under which the silo was taken away from Beach and delivered to him. He still has it.

Sheriff Arrived Before Ragna. Mr. Ragna claimed that when he sold the silo to Cook he had entered into an agreement by which Cook was to pay him for the silo and also reimburse him for the installments paid after Cook had taken the silo home. Cook claimed he was short of money but said he expected some soon. Ragna claimed that he went to Cook later and demanded money or the silo back. He told Cook if the money was not paid by a certain day he would take the silo. Cook agreed to his taking the silo and said he would deliver it to him in a few days when he had his corn drawn in. In the meantime Cook left and the sheriff arrived. The silo was the only available thing which the sheriff saw to levy on and he did so and sold it to Mr. Beach for $200. The replevin proceedings brought it back to Ragna.

Mr. Ragna brought his action for damages on the grounds that the silo was not the property of Cook and never had been paid for by him and that the silo was on the Cook farm awaiting its removal to the Ragna farm. He claimed bad roads prevented him getting the silo before the sheriff came.

Beach Bought in Good Faith.

Beach claimed that he was entitled to retain the silo since he had bought it at a sheriff's sale which had been advertised, and he also asked damages from Ragna by reason of the latter's possession of the silo through his replevin action. The action was partially tried before Judge Rosch last May.

Frank W. Brooks appeared for Mr. Ragna, who is deaf, and Van Etten and Cook appeared for the defendant.

The Verdict.

The jury returned a verdict for $200 for the defendant, Beach. Mr. Brooks moved to set aside the verdict as being improper in form. Judge Hasbrouck sustained his motion and instructed the jury to retire and determine the possession of the silo. The jury was instructed to find a verdict for defendant for the return of the silo or for $200 damages against the plaintiff.

Pact Proposals Unsatisfactory

Hindenburg and German Cabinet Standing Pat on Conditions Laid Down by German Delegation—Great Britain Would Evacuate Cologne.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Oct. 14.—President Hindenburg is standing pat upon the conditions laid down to the German delegation to the Locarno security pact conference. It was learned in a reliable quarter today.

The president, backed by the cabinet, is said to have found the Allied proposals for meeting Germany's conditions for entering the pact and the League of Nations unsatisfactory.

The report of Dr. Kempner, under secretary, upon the Locarno conference is understood to show the conference in a virtual deadlock with the Germans insisting upon revision of article XVI of the League of Nations covenant and opposing French guarantees for the proposed German-Polish security pact.

In official circles here it is not expected that the Locarno conference will break up. It is believed that the questions upon which the conference is now deadlocked will be brought up at another conference. It is understood that the Allies have already proposed such a course.

British to Evacuate Cologne.

London, Oct. 14.—Great Britain will evacuate Cologne as soon as Germany makes some gesture to prove to the world that she has carried out the disarmament clauses of the Versailles treaty, it was stated semi-officially today.

It is generally understood that Germany's entrance into the League of Nations or her signature to a Rhineland security pact would be considered sufficient evidence of their friendly intentions for Great Britain. The foreign office was confident today that an agreement on a security pact will be reached at Locarno this week. In fact foreign office attaches were so confident that it is believed here that a tentative agreement has been reached that England has already promised the evacuation of Cologne.

The Navy Has No Air Policy

Charged Rear Admiral William D. Sims, Retired, Before Air Board—Predicts Next War Will Be Won Through Command of the Air.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 14.—The next great world war will be won through "command of the air" Rear Admiral William D. Sims, retired, at one time a storm center of naval controversies, told the president's air board today.

Sims warned that America's national defense was suffering because of the loss of morale in the air services.

The navy, Sims charged, has no "air policy."

Sims declared that the navy department was "violating every fundamental principle of military command" in its treatment of aviation. As a result, he added, the morale of the air service has been destroyed.

"It is definitely known the navy has no defense air policy," said Sims. "It is the department's belief that battleships can defend themselves against all air attacks. They feel a bomb cannot sink a battleship."

The airman knows that a plane can sink or defeat any battleship afloat. Our policy should be command of the air.

"All fundamentally new weapons, without exception, have been rejected by military authorities down through the ages," Sims added. "None of my own experience include sails on men of war, armor protection, rided cannon, turret guns, the torpedo, the submarine and most serious of all, the training of high command provided by the naval war college."

"As a result the navy has for many years been conducted by untrained and untrained officers who have been appointed to the most important of these positions as the department has just appointed one of them to command of the fleet."

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Oct. 14.—Miss Emily Hall, Thomas Sexton, Miss Mae Schlueter of New York city and Ted Benson of California were guests at the home of Miss Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, on Hasbrouck street, last week.

A food sale will be held at the store of Harry Jump on Broadway, Friday, October 16, under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday school. Proceeds for the benefit of the school.

All members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church are invited to attend the quilting held at the home of Mrs. Charles Beaver on Broadway, Thursday. Quilting starts at 9 o'clock. A pot luck dinner will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doyle and family enjoyed a motor trip to Binghamton Sunday.

Lester O. Ferguson, the Broadway grocer, has purchased a new Ford delivery truck.

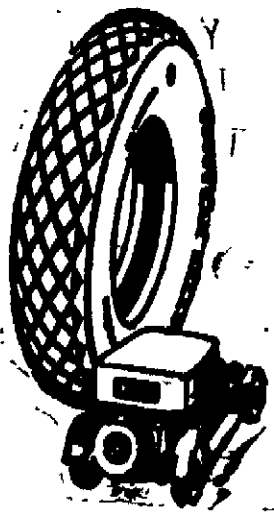

William and Warren Ferguson of Broadway spent the week end with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ferguson, in St. Remy.

The Ladies' Society of the Reformed Church will hold its annual fair Tuesday, November 17. Further details will be announced later.

The regular meeting of the Men's Community Club of Port Ewen will be held this evening at the lecture room of the Reformed Church at 8 o'clock. The Rev. F. W. Moot of Kingston will be the speaker of the evening. All members are urged to be present.

Famous Old Legend

The story of Frankenstein was published by Mary Shelley in 1818. In it a young student relates how he created a monster with materials collected from tombs and from dissecting rooms. The creature acquired life and committed many terrible crimes. He murdered a friend of the student, strangled his bride and eventually met his death in the Northern seas.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Cremulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Cremulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes
and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Cremulsion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks
the growth of the germs.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu.
Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Cre-mulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

FOR ITCHING TORTURE

Use Antiseptic Liquid Zemo

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation, and that makes the skin
soft, clear and healthy.

Any druggist can supply you with Zemo, which generally overcomes skin diseases. Eczema, itch, pimples, redness, blackheads, in most cases quickly give way to Zemo. Frequently, minor itchiness disappears overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid that may be applied
at any time, for it does not show.

Many Styles for Fall and Winter

Chic Gowns and Wraps Are Provided for Youth and Matron.

The waterfamilies has finally regained her place in the sun and the age of discretion need no longer cloak its wisdom in the garb of the ingenuity. That is one of the interesting messages of the Paris openings, and it will be received with varied emotions by the youth of yesterday, writes a Paris
fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. Many a slender dowager and numerous matrons set so thin who ever live and believe in days of "naughty" four will not be eager to forsake the styles which linked them still with the irrepressible and which, under the decree of Fashion, dimmed the esthetic eye and silenced the critical tongue. The new models, while they by no means lack in the charm of youthfulness, incorporate enough of the more stately therein to gratify the heart of the mature woman of cultured tastes and no matron need prouette the avenues
this autumn dressed as though she had just turned sixteen. If she does, she can no longer take refuge in the idea that "it's in mode." For it isn't, unless you choose to interpret it that way.

The waistless silhouette has been the principal difficulty of those who were unable to resist the weight of advancing years and inept attempts to offset it by figures no longer supple have been responsible for some unlovely and decidedly inartistic effects. The Paris couture this season has boldly declared for the marked waistline and enough varieties have been offered to satisfy the most difficult. Even the skirt length, mathematically as short as ever, frequently camouflages its brevity by means of scallops or an uneven hemline. And if to these you add the usually long and often decorative sleeve, the high neckline and the emphasis upon ornate trimmings and bright colors—not,
however, to the exclusion of black—it becomes apparent that smartness will not be the exclusive portion of the young for fall and winter.

Skirts That Show Moderation.
Suzanne Talbot demonstrates very clearly in her new collection that a great modiste can be a great dressmaker as well. Originality and a first-class knowledge of her subject are distinguishing characteristics of every gown shown. Russian, medieval and Oriental influences are marked, with an especial leaning toward the Egyptian effects, of which Madame Talbot has always been so fond.

The line is full and fairly straight,
with short skirts that still show moderation, for they more than cover the knee, being some sixteen inches off the ground. The hips are clearly defined either by a swathed belt or some drapery outlining the curves of the figure.
Sleeves are either long and tight-fitting,

Tiers of Ruffles in One-Piece Frock
for Street Wear.

or they do not exist. Many of the coats have fanciful sleeves. For instance, one in black cloth trimmed with astrakhan has long bag sleeves
that can hang straight down and cover the hands or be tucked up to form a full cuff. Another wrap, in white velvet embroidered in gold, has long pointed sleeves, nearly reaching the ground, such as were worn by ladies
during the days of the Crusaders.

Beautiful hand-woven materials are used for the attractive sports costumes that all show the two-piece jumper and skirt effects. Many of these are in two colors or two shades of the same color with large insets either diamond shaped or triangular.

Leather, gold foil, flat fur and painted parchment are used as trimmings. A black velvet gown has a round yoke and kaumt cuffs of flat gold foil. The dress is cut in one piece belted and molded to the hips,
while in front there is a twisted belt
from which spring full catfish forming a graceful front panel to the skirt.

A Higher Waistline.
A higher waistline is evidenced in a handsome evening gown of gold and black tulle that is as supple as the short silk. It has a front apron of another tulle in which red and green are mingled with the black and gold in a lovely floral design. This is so cut as to suggest that the back is forming a bolero, while the high waist is further accentuated by cleverly inserted plaits.

Another notable evening gown is in white mousseline de sole. The fullness of the skirt is accentuated in front by the finest plaiting, while the hips are enveloped in a coat-of-mail arrangement of fine gold petal-shaped pailettes, giving a truly Egyptian line.

An original raincoat is of heavy black waterproof crepe de chine
with a capuche hood and wide cuffs
of orange and beige plaid homespun, which also forms the lining. The dress under it has a charmingly simple jumper of the black waterproof that also forms panels down the sides of the straight plaid skirt, which has wide knife plaits in front.

This collection is artistic and clever throughout, and a notable feature is the amusing hat that has been designed to accompany every daytime costume.

The Miller Soeurs show a collection
that is distinctly Parisian. This salon

One-Piece Frock of Charmeuse, With Collar and Belt.

favors the moderately short skirt,
which means some two or three inches longer than those worn in Paris last season. Godets are employed to make the skirts wider, and are cleverly inserted in order to retain the general impression of the straight silhouette.
Usually they appear only in the front,
leaving the back plain and straight.

The coat frock is the outstanding feature of the collection. Some are straight and button to below the hip line, where they are left open to show
a plain slip underneath, while others have narrow godets in the front. Buttons are a favorite trimming on such frocks and they always serve the practical purpose of actually buttoning a fastening. Incidentally, they are the exact color of the frock.

Velvet Is Popular.
Little original touches either in belts
or collars are characteristic of this house. Miller Soeurs incline toward jabot effects this season and make them out of the ordinary by putting the buttons to work. A short jabot buttons down the front of a black coat frock. In another instance, a green crepe de chine dress, which has godets in the front of the skirt, is topped by a collar which is shaped like a coat collar and turns over in the back and ends in front in revers that are shaped with godets falling into lines of a jabot.

Satin is as surprisingly popular here
as everywhere and its popularity is likely to continue. Miller shows several black satin frocks, and favors black in most coat frocks. A black georgette crepe coat dress is tucked from a short shoulder yoke and has plaits at the sides. It buttons down the front, over a bow with long ends of beige chiffon edged with gold, which is attached at the neck to a black underslip. Another black coat dress is braided in soutache combined with embroidery, and still another in crepe
is trimmed down the front in little cuts with the edges bound in the shape of a halfmoon.

Attractive ensembles play their role in this collection. A green velvet evening coat has a mink collar and is embroidered in a band around the bottom in a design of autumn leaves in two shades of tiny gold beads. The frock is the same "vert lumiere" in crepe roma, with the bodice covered in the same design of fine beading and the skirt quite plain.

Velvet is a favorite trimming in evening frocks. A claret crepe has a flounce cut in godets across the front and headed by a row of velvet flowers applied to the skirt. A black crepe dinner-dress has a band of black velvet around the bottom of the circular skirt. The neck is rather different in having two long, narrow pieces attached to the shoulders. These are fastened together in the back with a diamond buckle.

Each favors plaits of every variety
to express more width in frocks.

Callot Creates Jumpers for Evening and the World at Large Approves.

The jumper dress has, of course, been established, and only runs the risk of overpopularity. It is made from all sorts and conditions of fabrics, and worn all hours of the day and night. Even Callot, whose models radiate splendor, and are usually stately, has introduced the jumper dress in their collection, and what is more, display it for evening.

From resorts where smart folks go for the autumn, one hears of jumper frocks in combination of velvet and crepe, or of velvet and faille. Many novelty velvets are found, including the rayon varieties, and some velvet-ens, which have much the effect of tweed.

Tweed has captured popular fancy,
and is employed generously, not only

Combined in This Callot Model.

for topcoats, but for dresses, since there is some interest manifested in cloth dresses again, though, in most instances, the cloth makes only the skirt and trimming, the blouse section being of cooler material.

Kashas and materials of this silk continue to be strongly favored, and are not infrequently embroidered. In some cases, the metal embroidery produces a plaid effect; in others,
one recognizes the futuristic influence so apparent in all current fashions. Jumper frocks have skirts which vary, but with the exception of a few wrap-arounds, there is nearly always group pleating or a flare of some sort, either front, back or side.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Frock for Youthful Figures.

5179. Dotted and plain voile is here combined. The design is also attractive in silk, broadcloth or tub silk. The sleeves may be short or in wrist length.

This pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. To make the dress as illustrated for a 16 year size will require 1 1/2 yard of 40 inch plain material for vestee and sleeves,
and 2 1/2 yards of figured material for the front and back. With long sleeves 3/4 yard of the plain material is required. With plaits extended the dress measures 1 1/2 yard at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration

"They Are Wearing"

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

A tunic long in front and coming
a little below the natural waistline
in back, where it was held in by a narrow belt, distinguished a dinner gown of black satin. There was a broad band of bright green satin near the bottom of the skirt, only a few inches of which showed below
the tunic in front which was embrodered with varicolored flowers at the hip.

A molded gown of white crepe was completely covered with small crossed pin-tucks. The deep decolletage was bound in white silk fringe, which also ran around the bottom of the skirt in three curved tiers.

A gown of black crepe satin worn
at a smart hotel had a narrow underskirt visible beneath a circular tunic, which was bound with wavy
one-inch bands of bugles, jet alternating with gunmetal. The tunic was slightly draped about the hips and held on one side with a pin of two black pearls, while scarflike panels, narrow at the top and a bit wider at the ends, hung from the shoulders.

A well known dancer wore a bou-fant frock of flesh chiffon weighted with petals in ombre shades of pink. Her girdle was of large chiffon poppies centered with rhinstones which also appeared at the left shoulder.

Chartreuse green chiffon lavishly beaded in crystal bands fashioned a two-piece evening frock. A long straight panel of the chartreuse chif-fon lined with orchid, formed a train at back and an orchid was posed on the left shoulder.

Red and gold brocade made a slender frock with a battlement border pointed out in bright gold lame
which also formed the cuff neckline terminating in scarf ends at back.
It is interesting that a bouquet of orchids was worn at the girdle rather than the shoulder, a fashion noted in several instances.

Marble Cake

3/4 Cupful Sugar
6 Tablespoonfuls Snowdrift
3 Eggs
1 Teaspoonful Desired Extract
1 1/2 Cupfuls Flour
1/4 Teaspoonful Salt
1 1/2 Teaspoonfuls Baking Powder
1/2 Cupful Milk

Stir the Snowdrift and gradually work in the sugar, the eggs, well-beaten, and the extract.
Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Beat well. Take out one-half the mixture and add to this a half teaspoonful
each of ground clove, cinnamon and mace.
Then put the plain and the spiced batter into the cake pan (which has been rubbed lightly with Snowdrift) in alternating tablespoonfuls, and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. Cover with any desired icing.

Try Snowdrift in this recipe or your own favorite cake recipe. After you learn what a very good shortening Snow-drift is you'll want to use it in all your recipes.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction, often at a very rapid rate, and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overeating, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of your superfluous fat.

If you are over stout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE in you so desire.

Polish Premier Soon to Resign

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Warsaw, Oct. 14.—The early resignation of Premier Grabski will cause no surprise in Poland. His position has been gravely weakened on account of the Polish financial crisis which has affected every citizen.

It is believed that M. Grabski's departure from office will coincide with the meeting of the Diet. The premier has recently announced his intention to abandon a liberal economic policy and embrace protectionism, on the grounds that high tariffs and the recall of all the existing commercial treaties are the only remedy for the present financial crisis. His opinion, however, is strongly opposed by the majority of the Polish leaders in politics, and it is doubtful whether Grabski will find any support in parliament.

His popularity, at one time great with the majority of electors, has suffered of late. In particular, by backing the radical land reform bill he has lost the sympathy of the powerful conservative elements in the country.

M. Rataj, speaker of the Diet, is regarded as Grabski's probable successor.

NEW PALITZ

New Palitz, Oct. 14.—Dewitt C. Ward, Jr., left Tuesday morning for Lake Placid, N. Y., where he will enter the Lake Placid Club School for boys. This school is similar to Lake Mohonk School. It accommodates fifty boys and they are chosen.

The Board of Indian Commissioners will not meet as has been their custom for many years this fall at Lake Mohonk. Their time is taken up with recent developments in the west necessitating close attention for several months. The Mohonk House will close for the season October 27.

The Rev. Ernest Clapp and elder attended the fall meeting of the classes of Ulster which met in the Stone Ridge church on Tuesday of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hasbrouck, Sr., attended the Grahamsville Fair.

The water department is laying a new eight inch pipe across the Wallkill. The old pipe will be left to be used in case of emergency.

Those from New Palitz who attended the supper of the Dutchess County Branch of the Holland Society at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie on Saturday, were Philip H. DuBois, Harry Deyo, Abram P. LeFevre, Daniel Hasbrouck, Jacob Eltinge, Sr., Jacob Eltinge, Jr., Jesse DuBois, Abram Jansen, Byron Terwilliger, Edwin LeFevre, Louis LeFevre, Fred Deyo, Joe Deyo and Bruyn Hasbrouck.

October 26 is the date of the first number of the Lyceum course which will be held in the Normal School auditorium under the direction of Principal Van den Berg and his committee. The number will be by the McDowell Concert party.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Van Wageningen and son David Van Wageningen and Miss Margaret Newton motored to the Danbury Fair on Tuesday.

Miss Maude Cole entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jansillo, her cousins of Washington, D. C., on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jansillo were on their way to Lake Mohonk.

Joe Connolly went to New York on Tuesday to attend the wedding of John J. Sullivan. The reception was held in the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hobbie of Savage were week end guests of Principal and Mrs. Lawrence Van den Berg.

Miss Polifeme has written to friends that on September 22 they left Italy after a three weeks' stay in Paris and said the Exposition of Decorative Arts was wonderful. She hopes to see her friends soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ives motored from Danbury and spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Poucher. Mrs. Poucher returned with them for a few days.

Mrs. Ernest Clapp, Mrs. Frank J. LeFevre, Mrs. George LeFevre and Miss Elizabeth LeFevre attended the annual luncheon of Mahlenawagh Chapter, D. A. R., held last Tuesday at the Vaassar Alumnae House, Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Ernest Smith, nee Benson, who has been in the Kingston Sanatorium for about three months, is very much improved.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church will hold their next meeting October 16 at the home of Mrs. Andria LeFevre.

Miss Gertrude Sutton spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving D. Sutton on Main street. Miss Mattie Hardenburgh of Gardiner spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Webb Kallifen.

Miss Catherine M. Sedgwick, a teacher of the West East School, was speaker in the Methodist Church on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Charles Lasher has been ill several days at her home.

Work is progressing on the foundation for the new house of Mr. Skrett on South Chestnut street.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Robert Hainshaw entertained guests on Sunday.

The Ladies' Home Journal Subscription Agency of Milton is prepared to receive subscriptions to this well known magazine. Also the Saturday Evening Post and Country Gentleman. This latter magazine is now a monthly instead of a weekly magazine and much larger at the price of three years for $1.00. Mail subscriptions should be sent to Ladies' Home Journal Subscription Agency, Box 112, Milton, N. Y. This agency is under the management of W. R. and E. N. Ordway. The agency office is located on the larger property on State street, Milton. Advertisement.

Stabbed His Wife to Death

Couple Had Quarrel Over Question of Wife Going Out Nights With Friends While Husband Was at Work.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 14.—George Winters, young postoffice clerk, stabbed his 21 year old wife, Margaret, to death early today in their home here, according to police. Winters, after stabbing himself was arrested.

Jealously was said to have caused the murder.
Mrs. Winters went to an Inn last night with the two girl friends, two men and a chaperone. Winters works at night and his wife was lonely, police said. The couple had quarrelled over this question for the past two months, according to neighbors.

Winters came home and not finding his wife inquired at the house of Mrs. Winters' friend, Cecelia Macerleard. He found his wife hiding under a bed, police said.
Winters then walked the streets, later returning home where Mrs. Winters had gone. Neighbors heard screams shortly afterward and called the authorities.

Mrs. Winters was found a few feet from her bed with a knife wound in her shoulder, neck and heart. She was dead.

Winters was bleeding from a self-inflicted stab wound.

SOCIETY NOTES

A Coming Wedding.
Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. John Booth Kearney for the marriage of their daughter, Katharine Hauke, to Arthur Donald Sweeney on Monday, October 26, at 6 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kearney, No. 251 Albany avenue.

Surprise Birthday Party.
A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arlis Krom of St. Remy in honor of Mr. Krom's birthday. The evening was enjoyed by playing games. A buffet lunch was served at 12 o'clock. The feature of the evening was a large birthday cake presented to Mr. Krom by his wife. Mr. Krom also was the recipient of many pretty and useful gifts. Guests were present from Kingston, Bloomington, Blinnewater, Eddyville, Esopus and Ulster Park. The party broke up in the early hours of the morning wishing Mr. Krom many more happy birthdays.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Thursday morning at eight o'clock the anniversary requiem Mass for the deceased Mrs. Annie E. Clare will be offered at St. Peter's Church.

The funeral of Hattie G., wife of Abram Wood, was held from the late residence, No. 9 Greenhill avenue, on Monday afternoon with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Besides her husband she is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Fred Dahlem of No. 210 Foxhall avenue; Mrs. Charles Harbeck of No. 9 Greenhill avenue; Mrs. Edwin Delevan of Broadway, and the Misses Emma and Ethel Wood; two sons, Abram Wood of 21 Foxhall avenue and Joseph Wood also of this city; one sister, Mrs. Ellen Teetsell of Washington avenue, and one brother, John Lowe of this city.

The funeral of Simon Weiss, who died at his home in Rosendale Saturday after a long illness was held from his late residence Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The remains were taken by auto to Union City, N. J., where they were cremated. Although sick for a long time he bore his suffering with great patience. Mr. Weiss was born in Germany 72 years ago, coming to this country 40 years ago and making his home in New York city until seven years ago when he moved to Rosendale. While a resident of Rosendale he endeared himself to a large circle of friends who are deeply grieved at his death.

The funeral of Mrs. Patrick Dempsey was held this morning from her late residence, 31 Greenhill avenue, at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Very Rev. Joseph G. Cushman, celebrant. Seated in the chancel was the Rev. Thomas P. Larkin, pastor of St. Colman's Church, East Kingston, and the Rev. Henry Fitzgerald of this city. The church was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends and the floral tributes were profuse and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. There was also a number of spiritual bouquets upon the casket. At the conclusion of the Mass Miss Marie Beichert sang very feebly, "Thy Will Be Done." The funeral cortege which was very large was accompanied by the Rev. Eugene A. Duggan and the Rev. Father Larkin to St. Mary's Cemetery, where the committal services were conducted. The bearers were James Powers, Joseph Powers, Edward Walsh, Morris Walsh, Joseph Dempsey and Edward Dempsey, all grandsons of Mrs. Dempsey.

Task Is Up to "Old Barney"

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—Now it's up to Walter Johnson.

"Old Barney," whose broad shoulders have long carried the brunt of Washington's baseball burden, this afternoon will take up the task which, it seems, only a Johnson can hope to carry to a successful conclusion.

Barney is weary from those two previous games. His leg, injured in the shut-out victory of Sunday, is still tender and sore. But late last night, when Stanley Harris sought him out in the lobby of the hotel where the Senators are staying to ask him if he would pitch, Barney grinned shyly.

"I shall be ready, Stanley," he said. And Harris turning to newspapermen gave out a single statement.

"Tell them," he said, "that the Senators will come back today with the greatest pitcher baseball has ever known. We're stringing along with Barney."

And so today it's up to Walter Johnson.

Herd Owners Hold Annual Meeting

Ulster County Accredited Herd Association Gets Satisfactory Report of Work Done Here During Past Year—Plan for Next Year's Work.

The third annual meeting of the Ulster County Accredited Herd Cooperative Association was held on Monday at the Grange Hall in New Paltz, Association President Millard Davis presiding. Secretary-Treasurer C. C. Hardenburgh reported the financial status of the organization, showing a balance on hand of $1,477.97. This financial statement was adopted by the members present.

In electing two directors to succeed Frank Dubois of Gardiner and C. C. Hardenburgh of Stone Ridge, the members present voted unanimously to re-elect the retiring directors.

209 Herds Tested.

Following the business session Mr. Davis called on County Veterinarian H. F. Fleming for his report on the year's work. Dr. Fleming reported 209 herds, totaling 1,216 head, tested for tuberculosis. Of this number tested, 115 herds have been tested during the past year, with 49 of this number already re-tested. On the initial test a total of 442 head, or 31 per cent of the animals tested showed tuberculosis to be present in their bodies. These animals were removed immediately and slaughtered. On the re-tests 841 animals were tested with two per cent showing signs of the disease. The number of herds tested and found free from disease now totals 148, with 31 of this number fully accredited.

Report Receives Commendation.

Commenting on this report, Dr. E. T. Fajlder, assistant director of animal husbandry at Albany, stated the report to be highly commendable. The very low per cent of reactors found on retests shows the veterinarian's work to be highly efficient, stated Dr. Fajlder. It also shows care is being taken in the prompt removal of reactors and thorough disinfection of infected barns.

Progress of Work in State.

Following Dr. Fleming's report, Dr. Fajlder gave a very interesting talk on the progress of the work throughout the state. Forty counties are now organized and working to eradicate tubercular cattle from New York state herds. The counties of Essex, Greene, Steuben, Cattaraugus and Allegany have succeeded in testing every animal within their borders. To become an "accredited county," it is necessary according to the state ruling that less than one-half of one per cent tubercular animals be found on the last test. Essex county is already in the "accredited" class, with Steuben, Allegany and Cattaraugus in line for accreditation before January first. Ulster county, with one township completely tested and another nearly so, has made rapid progress in the brief time the work has been going on here, states Dr. Fajlder.

$40,000 for Work in Ulster.

It is not a problem of speeding up but rather one of slowing up the work, to keep within the available indemnity funds. Ulster's allocation of indemnity for 1925-26 is $40,000. This is an amount sufficient to complete Gardiner and one other township.

Plans for Coming Year.

President Davis announced the plans for the coming year to include the completion of the work in Gardiner, initial testing in the town of Saugerties, re-test in the town of Denning, with a possibility of completing the work in Hardenburgh. Cooperation of all cattle owners in these towns is needed to carry out the program.

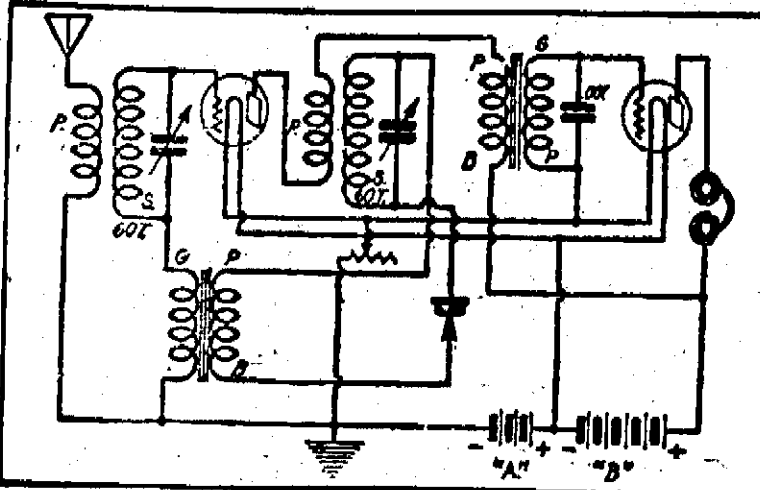

Odds and Ends

The Women's Missionary Society of the Warts Street Baptist Church will meet at the chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The president requests all members who attended the convention at Poughkeepsie be prepared to give a report.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE AT ROSENDALE

John Dellar, the realtor of Rosendale, has purchased the necessary machinery and tractor for the purpose of opening the roads at Rosendale Heights development. He also began filling in the vacant corner opposite St. Peter's Church, but what he will build there is not known. He is clearing out the old picnic grounds for the purpose of an amusement park for next season. He is doing his share in the village and town and a few more like him would help make Rosendale the most ideal summer resort in the state.

RADIO

By JAMES E. CARTIER.

In New York Herald-Tribune.
The construction of seemingly difficult multi-tube radio receivers seems to have been the stumbling block of many amateur builders. For this reason the home constructor has been inclined to build sets along simpler lines. Although a two-tube receiver does not seem capable of receiving signals like one of its bigger brothers it is surprising just what results may be obtained with such a set if properly constructed.

The Air Service two-tube reflex receiver employing the well known Harkness circuit seems to be one of reasonably simple design. The list of parts for the construction of this receiver is as follows:

- 7 by 12-inch panel.
- 7 by 11-inch baseboard.
- Two standard sockets.
- Two audio-frequency transformers.
- One rheostat (50 ohm).
- Battery switch.
- Crystal detector.
- Double circuit jack.
- Single circuit jack.
- Set of six binding posts.
- Two .00037 mfd. condensers.
- Two radio-frequency transformers.

Of the above-mentioned parts the two radio-frequency transformers may be easily constructed by the handy radio builder, or may be bought in kit form ready to assemble.

Coil-Winding Data.

For the benefit of those who desire to construct their own radio-frequency transformers the data will be given herein.

The secondary of both of the coupling transformers is the first to be wound on the tube form. The secondary of the transformer coupled to the antenna circuit should have 60 turns of No. 24 wire, wound on a 2 1/2-inch form, and over this should be wrapped a sheet of insulating cloth or waxed paper. This serves as an insulator between the primary and secondary coils. The primary should consist of ten turns of the same size wire wound over the insulation cloth and in the same direction as the secondary. It is absolutely necessary that both coils be wound in the same direction if best results are to be had.

The primary of the second coupling transformer is slightly different in size. This transformer is wound on the same diameter tube and assumes the same physical proportions as the transformer just described, the chief difference being that the primary consists of 32 turns instead of 10.

In order to make it possible for the set to be mounted in as small a space as possible the coupling coils may be mounted directly on the back of the condensers with the secondary wires connected to the two terminals. The primary wires should be left disconnected until the set is to be wired. Then they may be connected to the respective places in the circuit.

The two transformers should be mounted at right angles to each other in order to minimize coupling between the two.

The drilling of the panel and the wiring of the set is no more difficult than the ordinary simple regenerative receiver. The wiring diagram, as shown, will aid the constructor in the proper arrangement of the apparatus.

Will Not Oscillate.

A particular advantage of this receiver is that it will neither oscillate nor radiate an interfering wave on the air. One of the tubes employed in the receiver acts as a radio-frequency amplifier and is referred to as it acts as a radio and audio-frequency amplifier at the same time, or in other words, does double duty. The detecting is accomplished by means of a simple crystal detector.

Such a simple receiver, although seemingly small in size, ought to be capable of receiving many stations, both local and distant with sufficient volume to operate a loud speaker.

Either loop or outdoor antenna may be used on such a reflex receiver, although the latter will give better results on distant stations.

Mounting the Apparatus.

The two variable condensers are mounted on the extreme ends of the panel with the rheostat and crystal detector in the middle. This arrangement allows the operator to control the set with ease, all controls being within easy reach.

When wiring the amplifier best results will be obtained by having the audio-frequency transformers placed at right angles to each other. This does away with the possibility of howling.

Particular care should be exercised in wiring the system. Make sure the wires are as short and direct as possible. In no case should the grid wires come near a plate wire. If it is found necessary to cross grid and plate wires there should be at least an inch between them and in no case should they run parallel.

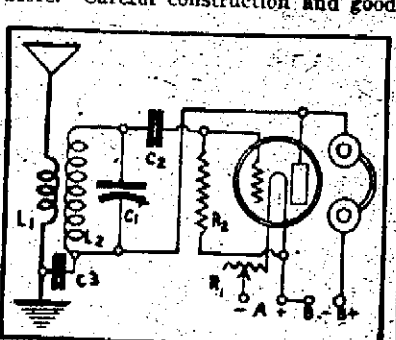

This circuit will operate equally well with any of the standard hard amplifying tubes now on the market. The 201A and 301A are particularly recommended. Best results should be obtained when using a plate voltage of about 80 volts.

The set has been found to have the quality of being quite selective. If a good grade of crystal detector is employed very little adjustment will be necessary.

Particular stress should be made on the point that the performance of the set depends largely on the wiring. Wires in the radio-frequency circuit, especially the plate and grid wires, should not be run parallel. If these points are observed the builder ought not to have any difficulty in making the set operate well under favorable conditions.

One-Tube Set That Will Give Surprising Volume

Here's a mighty efficient little one-tube set that will give surprising volume and will step out and get distance that will astonish you. It has but one dial, something that will appeal to the feminine portion of the household which sometimes has difficulty in fathoming the mysteries of the extra dials found on many sets. It is easily constructed and calls for parts that can be found in any radio store. Careful construction and good parts, of course, are essential to success.

The tuning coil can be made at home by anyone of average skill. It is wound on a 3 1/2-inch tube, 4 inches long. The primary (L1) consists of 12 turns of No. 22 dec. wire. Half an inch away from the primary wind a secondary (L2) of 47 turns of the same size wire. C1 is a variable condenser of .0005 capacity, preferably low-loss. C2 is a .00025 grid condenser and C3 is a .001 fixed condenser. Regeneration is controlled mainly by the rheostat. This hook-up could be used very nicely in a portable set, as it will work effectively with dry-cell tubes.

Can't All Be Vegetarians.

There is one very good reason why we cannot all be vegetarians, even if we would. In the first place there are not enough vegetables in the world to feed everybody, and in the second place there is not enough land on which to grow vegetables. Meat is concentrated vegetable food. Again, we must have leather, wool, feathers, horn, ivory, fur, kid, hides, hair, etc., and to get these usually means the death of the animal. So, we put our coverings outside, and their flesh inside. Vegetarianism is good enough for poets, artists and preachers, but the strenuous, virile, fighting, aggressive man requires meat—Deasy.

Reward for Heroes

The Carnegie hero fund was created by Andrew Carnegie in April 1904. It provides rewards which consist of medals and money grants to persons injuring themselves or to relatives of those losing their lives in an effort to save their fellow men.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 14.—Stock prices moved forward today in most of the active sections of the speculative list. There was a considerable contraction in the active list, however, which narrowed down to the motor, mercantile, oil and a few of the public utility shares, while the great bulk of railroad and industrial stocks were either inactive or irregular.

Notwithstanding further price cuts in eastern and western gasoline markets, as well as in export gasoline, there was a strong market for all stocks, both in the listed market and on the curb. Marland, Pan-American, Mid-Continent, Texas and other well known independent oil stocks moved up about a point in the average. Dependent store stocks showed speculative interest with the oil, and good gains were scored by Associated Dry Goods, Gimbel, Macy and Kresge Department Stores, etc.

FIRST MEETING OF ST. MARY'S JUNIOR HOLY NAME

St. Mary's Junior Holy Name Society held its first meeting of the year at St. Mary's school hall Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, with thirty members attending.

Arrangements are under way for for basketball for the coming season, also a team to represent St. Mary's Junior Holy Name Society. David Long has been secured as manager of the team and with the help of the members of this society it is expected that a representative team will be developed. Election of officers will take place at the next meeting. All boys of St. Mary's parish from 14 to 18 are asked to join this society.

Arrangements are under way for a basketball league to be played on Tuesday and Fridays of each week. Available stock has been secured for winter sports and all members that wish to try for the junior team may do so by attending the next meeting.

The Rev. William Kennedy, the spiritual director, gave an instructive talk on the duties of the members of the Holy Name Society.

New Haven Wants Its Cars and Ships

Trolley and Steamship Lines Taken From New Haven Railroad in 1914 Are Sought to Be Returned in Public Interest.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 14.—E. G. Duckland, vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, argued before Federal Judge Winslow today that the railroad be permitted to again assume ownership of trolley lines in Connecticut and steamship lines on Long Island Sound taken from it in 1914.

Buckland based his plea on public service and economy. He declared that under present transportation conditions the public will receive better service if the trolley lines are operated by the railroad instead of private corporations. He also asserted that if the railroad hopes to recover money which it sunk in the trolley lines, it must operate the lines itself.

Buckland stressed the fact that the trolley lines are feeders to the railroad and do not compete with the steam trains. He said that if the railroad owned the trolley power houses at New Haven, Conn., in addition to its own power house at Cos Cob, Conn., it could economize by making possible an exchange of power between the two plants. The government, represented by District Attorney Alexander. Royce, demanded the fullest proof that the public welfare be protected if a change is made.

PLAN TO HARNESS TIDE FOR POWER

American Engineers Study Feasibility of Bay of Fundy Project.

John N. B.—Much interest has been aroused throughout the Canadian maritime provinces, particularly in New Brunswick, by the proposed project to generate between 500,000 and 7,000 electrical horse power by harnessing the famous tides of the Bay of Fundy in two inlets near Eastport, Me. American hydraulic engineers investigating the feasibility of the project, pronounced it entirely practical from an engineering standpoint, adding that it presented one of the most promising developments in the electrical world in a decade. The project is being sponsored by Walter P. Cooper, American capitalist, who spent several weeks here recently in his interest. Mr. Cooper extended to members of the New Brunswick government at the time, that as he was in authority to begin with construction was obtained from Maine, application to proceed with the work would be made to the provincial and Dominion governments, as well as to the international joint waterways commission. Titles to certain lands on the New Brunswick side of the St. Croix river already have been searched for by the crown lands office in Fredericton, the provincial capital. A state-referendum is to be taken in Maine to decide whether the sale of power will be permitted outside the state, provided the project materializes.

Fix Cost at $75,000,000.

The cost of harnessing the tides, Mr. Cooper estimates at $75,000,000, financing of which has already been assured. It would require at least five years before actual power could be supplied after the work was started, Mr. Cooper said. When completed, however, a maximum of 750,000 horse power could be produced annually, enough and to spare for the New England states. Electric power at hitherto unheard-of rates would be available all over the provinces, he declared, and, according to engineers, could be transmitted as far as Boston, Mass.

The Bay of Fundy is noted for having the highest and strongest tides in the world. These are caused by the peculiar submarine topography and wedge shape of the adjacent waters. At St. John the tides rise 25 feet, causing on the lower St. John the only natural phenomenon of kind in existence, a reversible waterfall; that is to say, when the tide is coming in, the falls, which are some 100 feet high, "drop" upstream, and when the tide is going out they "drop" downstream. At the end of the Bay, between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the tide is the highest on earth, at slack water measuring between 60 and 70 feet. At Moncton, on the Saguenay bay, the incoming tide travels with such great velocity that it attains a "bore" of six feet.

Coast Vessels' Graveyard.

Its fierce tides and storms, treacherous reefs and shoals, steep rocky coast and frequent heavy fogs make the Bay of Fundy one of the most perilous passages known to mariners. Early, dozens of coasting vessels and fishing schooners bound for the Grand Banks of Newfoundland are lost here. The early French explorers and missionaries have described its fury and turbulence when in tempest, and it was known to be the bane of the simple Indian peasants who peopled its desolate shores some two centuries ago. Tales of havoc wrought by its mad winds and tide-rips still live in the legendary lore of the descendants of the Micmac and Maliseet Indians and throughout this part of Canada.

Plans and specifications for utilizing the potential power of the Fundy tides have been completed. The two basins which have been selected are known as Passamaquoddy bay and Passamaquoddy bay. The first is designated the upper pool and the second as the lower pool. Both inlets are V-shaped, with their narrow necks, almost stopped by small island groups, called at Eastport.

At the mouth of the upper pool, which contains about 100 square miles of water, the plans call for the erection of a sea wall 4,000 feet long and 70 feet high. The wall is to be divided with 33 sluice gates. The mouth of the lower pool, containing 70 square miles of water, is to be closed by a similar gate, 2,400 feet long.

Between the two pools a separating wall 3,600 feet in length will be built which power plants are to be located.

Theory of Operation.

The theory is this: The gates of the upper pool are to be opened only during flood tides, while the gates of the lower pool are to be opened only during ebb tides. This, according to the plans, will keep a supply of water in the upper pool, while the lower pool will be constantly emptied. The fall of the water from the upper pool through the turbines into the lower pool will create a continuous down-fall, regardless of whether the tides are in or out.

Several years ago when the idea of harnessing the tides was first presented, it was received with derision. The lay mind it appeared altogether visionary. The magnitude of the project as then set down was overwhelming even to experts in hydro-electric development. Nothing of the kind had ever been undertaken. But since the idea received the sanction of some of the foremost men in the profession, experts and laymen alike have reversed their attitudes and opinions. Men have bent the most potent forces of nature to his will before; many are hopeful now that he will be able to wrest from the tides in the Bay of Fundy some small measure of that incalculable power which is still the plaything of the moon in the scheme of the universe.

"Dead" for Five Minutes, Is Restored to Life

Los Angeles, Cal.—Dying is easy, but coming back to life is a living hell. "Dead" for five minutes and restored to life by adrenalin, William Bethurum, seventy-two years old, described recently his excursion into the realm of the "hereafter."

Bethurum collapsed in the county sheriff's office when informed that friends had bailed him out of jail, where he was held on a minor charge. County jail physicians pronounced him dead and Dr. Benjamin Blank was called to sign the death certificate. Although he had little hope of reviving Bethurum because of his extreme age, Blank decided to administer adrenalin.

Bethurum responded quickly to the treatment and was delivered smiling to his home in less than an hour.

"The dying didn't hurt a bit," he said. "I don't remember a thing about it. It was just like going to sleep."

"But the coming-to was hell. I was never so deathly ill in all my life as when the effects of the adrenalin were wearing off."

Bethurum was proprietor of a restaurant.

"I'll just rest up a bit for a few days and then go back to work," he said. "I am too young and full of life to be lying around and doing nothing."

Must Prove Age to Drive Automobile in New York

New York.—Youths who desire licenses to drive autos hereafter must file birth certificates to show their real ages.

Commissioner Charles A. Hartnett, head of the state motor vehicle bureau, issued an order that all applicants between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one must file birth certificates with their applications, effective September 1. Formerly birth certificates were demanded only in cases where the applicant stated that he was between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one.

William M. Arnstein, executive assistant to Commissioner Hartnett, in explaining the new order, said:

"This order is intended to put a check on the so-called automobile schools, which purport to teach persons to drive cars and which will not stop at criminal means to obtain drivers' licenses for their pupils. In one case it was shown that a boy, not yet seventeen, had attended one of these schools, and obtained a driver's license."

Mr. Arnstein added that it is an easy matter for a husky youth of sixteen or seventeen to pose as more than twenty-one, and thus avoid having to produce a birth certificate, and added that the practice is a common one in New York.

Frames Kidnaping to Deceive Unloved Fiance

Detroit, Mich.—So that she might marry a suitor other than the one to whom she had been promised by her mother, Rose Trentacosta, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Sophie Trentacosta, was "kidnaped" from her home with consent and through connivance of her mother.

This, the police theory of the kidnaping, has been confirmed by a special delivery letter from the girl, in which she requests the police to "forget it," and by the admission of Mrs. Trentacosta to two detectives that she planned the affair for her daughter.

Lieut. Edward Dadike and Detective John Davies of the blackhand squad, who investigated the "kidnaping," reported that Mrs. Trentacosta admitted the "frame-up."

Rose was engaged to Tony Manalci. But Peter Vitale came and to Rose and her mother his offer of marriage seemed more advantageous than Tony's.

One day they sat down with Peter and arranged that he and three of his friends should kidnap Rose. In this way Tony was deceived.

Cites Her Plainness to Prove Innocence

New York.—Lack of feminine charms was advanced by Mrs. Cora M. Dorian in Supreme court as one reason her husband's charge of unfaithfulness should not be believed, when she asked Justice Walsh through her attorney not to set aside the alimony awarded to her when she won a separation from her husband.

"I am forty-nine years of age. I am five feet two inches in height, and I weigh 140 pounds," her affidavit to Justice Walsh read. "I have defective eyesight, wear glasses and am slightly deaf. I confess I am not comely to look upon."

Justice Walsh decided her husband must continue to support her until he can prove to court the charge upon which he bases his divorce suit.

Mrs. Dorian was awarded $45 a week alimony. Dr. John S. Dorian, the husband, charges that July 17, when he and two women broke into her apartment, she was found with another man.

Culloton On Mound Sunday

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star
of Tuesday's issue has the following
to say:

Bud Culloton, a member of the pitching staff of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is scheduled to arrive home in Kingston Saturday, and will, if possible, pitch for Eddie Phelan's
All Stars against the Millbrook Club
Sunday afternoon in Millbrook.

Jack Robins, manager of the Colonials, along with Eddie Phelan telegraphed the Pittsburgh pitcher
last night and it was said that Cullerton answered that if it was possible he would be on hand for the game. Should Cullerton fail to show up for the affair Howie Conklin will be worked on the mound.

Tommy McCarthy, Waterbury
catcher, who was drafted by the Detroit Tigers, has been asked to play
second base while Stretch McDermott will be on first. Matty Deegan will play shortstop and McCue third base. The outfielders will be Schwab of the Kingston Colonials,
Fred Dunn of the Poughkeepsie Hogwags and Eddie Phelan of the Poughkeepsie Red Sox. The contest will be called promptly at 2:30.
Phelan has requested Millbrook to obtain Chief Mueller of this city as one of the umpires.

Old German Waterworks
Uncovered by Workmen

Potsdam—Ruins of what is thought to be the foundation of famous waterworks constructed in 1683 to supply Potsdam castle with water were recently discovered during some excavation work.

The foundation is extremely massive and built of sandstone and ancient bricks. Several archeologists declared the ruins represented the waterworks foundations built during the reign of Leopold I. An additional force of workmen has been employed to lay bare as speedily as possible what may be an interesting historical find.

Tagging All
The Series Bases

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—Perhaps the records will show that some other player-manager in a world series effaced himself for a pinch hitter but we think not. Stanley Harris is given to doing unique things and most of the time he is right.

In the case in point, he was eminently right. The young man hasn't been hitting the size of his neck band.
Eddie Moore's single and homer were long over due, Edward having been in a prolonged slump. He selected an excellent moment to snap out of it.

The fans tendered Sam Rice, the Bronx cheer every time he showed his head above the level of the dugout.
Mr. Rice, you know, caught that ball that was caught or wasn't caught in the third game at Washington and the boys here thought he ought to be chided for his slick city ways.

It would seem that, with the Senatorial infield as shaky as it has been,
the Pirates have overlooked a bet in not doing more bunting. They even forebore with young Buddy Myer at third base. Another tip would be to bunt against Walter Johnson today, provided his leg happens to be as lucky as it was yesterday.

This is the greatest casualty series of all time. Lee Meadows has a sore
arm. So, they say, has Dutch Reuther. Stanley Harris has a sore hand.
So has Eddie Moore. And there will be plenty of sore heads about just as soon as one club or the other loses
the series.

Kremer had much more stuff than Ferguson but the latter managed to stick around until they erased him with a pinch hitter in the eighth.

They voted Peckinpaugh the most valuable player in the American League and then he turned around and became the least valuable player in the Washington club. Peck's shortstopping in this series has been woeful.

First Game at Armory Oct. 28

The first basketball game of the season will be held at the New York State armory on October 28. The game, an exhibition contest, will be staged by the Kingston team of the Tri-County League and the Hiversides of Poughkeepsie.

Jack Spalt, manager of the Kingston team is completing plans and in a few days announcement of the players will be made.

Army Prepares
For Notre Dame

The Army's final drive for the Notre Dame game Saturday began Monday. Taking Knox in their stride last Saturday the team is in good shape to continue and complete the polishing-off touches that should take them into the game next Saturday ready to face and beat back whatever Rockne brings east.

McEwan was well aware of the fact that, starting with Notre Dame,
and playing them, Yale, Columbia and Navy on alternate Saturdays, he would have to bring his team along slowly so as not to be overfired for the first big test with the South Bend school. And under Wandie's fine care and judgment, thus being able to point a team for four big games, seems about to be realized.

The Knox game proved rather easy, especially considering two facts—that McEwan used his first string men most sparingly and restricted his quarterback's practicality to straight football. Too many visiting scouts were present to permit anything else.

McEwan's playing continues to be excellent. He certainly should prove a thorn against the Notre Dame team. His kicking is also improving.
He showed rare football nerve against Knox in getting off two punts after he had dropped the ball
in each case.

One of the surprises of the day was Gilbreth's showing in the backfield. Taken from end last week, he more than proved the wisdom of the move in his playing against Knox.

With Gilbreth in the backfield, McEwan now has two complete back-fields: Wilson, Trapnell, Hewett and Harding is one, with Yeomans, Scheffler, Buell and Gilbreth the other.

Scheffler was rather badly hurt
Saturday and may be out of the Notre Dame game. His place will probably be taken care of by Hall, Allan or Zimmerman.

Only one hour was available for practice Monday, and this under the glare of huge arc lights, on the plain, aided by an immense searchlight flashing from Fort Putnam.
These lights will be in constant use this week, due to the lateness of the start of Army's practice, which, due to Academic and Military Training, starts at 3:45 p. m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, and at 5 p. m. on Mondays and Fridays.

As a final preparation for Notre Dame, then, McEwan has but seven hours of football practice, since there will probably be none on Friday. This shortage of time is the most serious drawback facing the Army coaches this week.

Hewett, Yeomans, Seeman and Landon all practiced punting yesterday. The Army has a long way still to go in this particular respect before they can hope to compete on even terms with other teams that contain good kickers.

Wilson and Buell practiced place kicking in connection with the try-for-goal after touchdown. Both had a great deal of success.

The coaches spent most of the hour yesterday in talking over game Saturday and in perfecting their detailed plans for the Army's defense against Notre Dame's attack.

Good Bouts at Elks' Smoker

Eight boxing bouts, followed by several vaudeville acts, was the pleasing program enjoyed by a large crowd Tuesday evening at first of the Elks' smokers of the season.

Fisher and Houlihan fought in the final bout for four rounds and their efforts met with the approval of the house. They will appear at the next smoker.

Costello of Port Ewen won his match from Brockema, the scrap being stopped in the first round. At the next smoker Costello will meet a much stronger opponent when he tackles Young Hart of East Kingston. Hart and Hertica furnished four good rounds.

There were a number of other interesting bouts bringing together
colored boys.
The vaudeville program followed the boxing exhibitions.

Odds Slightly
Favor Pirates

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—The home run world series will be fought to a finish here today with the odds slightly favoring the Pirates despite the threat of a third dose of Walter Johnson's pitching. Bucky Harris is frantically wiring the old master together for the supreme effort. If Johnson is right the Pirates must show the Senators better pitching than they have yet cashed in for their victories in the series.

But is Johnson right?
That is a question that nobody,
not even Johnson or Harris, can answer until Pirate bats wave defiance at the big train this afternoon. The Johnson who shut out the Buccaners last Sunday will give any Pittsburgh pitcher plenty of trouble.
But a Johnson coming back with a two day rest and a chafed horse may not be the Johnson of the first and fourth games.

Dutch Reuther, they say, has a sore arm. Coveleskie is through.
Ferguson was beaten yesterday.
Zachary was driven off the mound in one inning Monday. Ballou is an untried rookie. Russell and Morbery are mere reservists and are not even being considered as starters. That process of elimination subtracts everybody but Johnson.

"Pittsburgh has Morrison, Oldham and Sheehan" declared Hughie Jennings last night, "but Harris has Johnson, Johnson and Johnson."

CLINTON AVENUE SENIOR
QUINTET ORGANIZE TUESDAY

The Clinton Avenue Senior basketball team organized Tuesday evening
and made plans for the coming season. At this meeting Oscar Newkirk, a new comer, was chosen captain of the 1925-26 team. While Rodney Chipp was selected as coach. The team contemplates a successful season and will start practice at once and will begin to book teams about November 1. The quintet has lost two of last year's stars in Carl Snyder and Kenneth Hyatt, who are playing with other teams this season.
Nevertheless the team has a likely candidate in Captain Newkirk, who has played with several aggregations
throughout Ellenville and Nanapanoch.
Chipp and Slater are the only last year's regulars bidding for berths on the team.

Found in Church Attic

New York—Mining for 57 years,
the great crystal chandelier which hung in St. Paul's chapel from 1596 to 1838 recently was found hidden in the attic of the chapel, where it had been laid away when the chapel last was renovated.
Plans are being made to restore this splendid building of worship in New York city as nearly as possible as it was when George Washington was shipped there, and steps have been taken to utilize the chandelier.
Twenty-four smaller chandeliers,
given away at the time the big one was placed in the attic, also will be used, if they can be found.

FINAL MEETING OF THE BASKETBALL JAMBORÉE

The final meeting of the Basketball Jamboree Committee will be held in the office of the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. at 5:15
p. m. on Thursday of this week.

The sale of the tickets for the jamboree will close with this meeting.
This is necessary as the basketball teams for the tournament, which is part of the Jamboree, will be chosen that evening. The names of all players and the team on which they will play will be published in The Freeman immediately following the meeting. The opponents for the first round of the main tournament will also be drawn and published.

The Jamboree is a new idea in basketball and is sure to furnish fun
in the form of basketball games, comedy and entertainment to all who attend. This will be topped off by a first class feast.

The Jamboree is open to all basketball players in the city. A membership in the Y. M. C. A. is not needed for this event. Simply secure a ticket before 8 o'clock on Thursday evening and watch the newspapers for completed plans.

The committee in charge is Robert

Murray, chairman; Wesley Thompson, Tom Rowland, O'Neil Black and the Physical Director of the Y. M.
